Ohio Grange Head Urges Cooperation Of Farmers

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Group cooperation around a continuous conference table was recommended to the 74th annual convention of the Ohio State Grange today as a means of preventing economic chaos.

The recommendation was made by Joseph W. Fichter, state Grange master, in his annual report. Fichter declared:

"What we commonly call the law of supply and demand is not permitted to operate naturally today. On account of monopolies exercised by individuals and by organized groups, production today in our modern technological society is a part of a national, even international, web of related activities.

"When we substituted machinery for handicraft we thought we were freeing ourselves from the slavery of back-breaking labor, but we have become a slave to the machine which we have created.

"In order to free ourselves from this situation, we have organized into groups and up to the present moment each group has tried to out-manuever and out-pressure the other in order to get what it considers to be its share."

Simple Plan Urged

Fichter pointed out that his recommendation of group cooperation "may appear too simple to be effective."

"However," he continued, "simplicity is a part of the pattern of nature, and as we follow natural laws closely in our human relationships we do not go very far wrong."

Fichter said the lack of transportation facilities is one of the main farm problems today. Despite abundant supplies of grain, he declared these facilities are not adequate to move the grain from the farms and elevators to the seaboard.

On international relationships, the Grange head asserted that

ADVANCE NEWS SAID IGNORED

Solons Say Information On Pearl Harbor, Ardennes, Mussolini Discarded

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A congressional committee declared today that American authorities "ignored" advance information on the Pearl Harbor attack, the German onslaught in the Ardennes, and the overthrow of Mussolini.

The charge was embodied in a report to the house by the military affairs committee in which it was recommended that congress make permanent the central intelligence authority established last January by President Truman by executive order.

The committee stated:

1. "The record of the joint senate-house committee investigating Pearl Harbor showed that a considerable number of important officials knew as a result of correctly evaluated intelligence that a sudden Japanese blow was to be expected the morning of Dec. 7, 1941."

2. "Any number of United States Army officers can testify to the fact that it was known as a result of correctly offered intelligence that a German force of alarming proportions was ready to deliver an attack in the Ardennes shortly before Christmas of 1944."

3. "Sometime prior to Mussolini's downfall a report came to the pentagon to the effect that a plot was being hatched against the Italian dictator and that at any appropriate moment he would be dismissed and his place taken by Badoglio."

This advance information, stated the committee, was "ignored or discarded." It added that the advance intelligence on Mussolini's (Continued on Page Two)

POLICE REPORT PARENTS PAID BOYS FOR THEFT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Columbus police held the mother, father and stepbrother today of two small boys who said they were rewarded for stealing large sums of money.

John Dixon, 12, and his brother, Charles, 8, told police they had stolen $200 from a commercial photo finishing firm and were given a dollar apiece "for bringing the money home to mother."

Police arrested Charles Dixon, Sr., 63, and his wife, Lela, 39, on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property and contributing to the delinquency of minors. A delinquency complaint was filed against William Dixon, 17, on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property.

The two youngsters told police they had committed several burglaries and thefts. Officials of the photographic firm, the E. R. Kissinger company, estimated damage done by the boys when they ransacked the establishment at nearly $2,000.

Two smaller children, aged five and three, were taken to juvenile center for safekeeping.

COLD WEATHER DUE TO ARRIVE DURING NIGHT

By International News Service

A mass of cold air from the Northwest was descending on Ohio today and was scheduled to drop the mercury between 10 and 15 degrees throughout the state tonight.

Weather bureau forecasters said that the latest cold snap would hang on through tomorrow, with the mercury probably getting on the upgrade by Thursday.

Blustery winds of from 25 to 30 miles an hour in velocity were to accompany the cold.

Rain and rising temperatures yesterday quickly brought the northern part of the state out of its worst traffic situation so far this winter. Freezing rain for a short period glazed streets and highways and many skidding accidents resulted.

Baruch Asks Showdown

IMMEDIATE VOTE ON ATOM BOMB CONTROL URGED

U. S. Advisor Given Backing Of British Delegate To Energy Commission

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Bernard M. Baruch, presidential advisor for the last generation, today demanded a showdown vote by the United Nations on his formula for prohibition of the atomic bomb and "vetoless" future control of atomic energy.

Baruch presented a take-it-or-leave-it proposition to an open meeting of the atomic energy commission.

Bearing in mind that the United States developed this mass destruction weapon and holds the secret of its composition, Baruch told the commission that the world must accept the American formula for future control and inspection. He said:

"We have no pride of authorship. But we can not, in justice to our trust, accept changes in purpose. We have debated long enough."

Principal points in the American proposal are that prohibition of the atomic bomb and peacetime control of atomic energy first be ratified in treaty form by all responsible governments, and that an international control body be created with full power to make on-the-spot investigations at will in all countries.

The American delegate anticipated acceptance of the U. S. proposal in view of the arms reduction resolution unanimously adopted by the general assembly last week "following strong supporting speeches by Messrs. Molotov and Bevin."

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British member of the atomic energy commission, in a brief speech, seconded Baruch's motion. This indicated a final meeting of minds between the United States and Great Britain, because as late as last night the British were imploring Baruch not to press for an immediate vote.

THREATS MADE AGAINST FIXER

State's Attorney Wants Gambler In Pro Grid Case Kept In Jail

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Assistant District Attorney George Monaghan revealed today in general sessions that threats have been made to kill Alvin J. Paris, who sought to bribe two New York Giant players before Sunday's pro football playoff with the Chicago Bears.

In asking the court to deny bail to the 28-year-old Broadway gambler, the district attorney said:

"A member of the police department informed me that he had received a telephone call to the effect that attempts would be made on the life of this defendant. I do know that he has been associated with gamblers who have felony convictions."

Monaghan told Judge Francis L. Valente that he would submit evidence by 3:30 p. m. this afternoon to back up his statements.

Before the argument over bail, Paris, through his counsel, Caesar Barra, pleaded innocent to a two-count indictment accusing him of attempting to bribe Merle Hapes and Frank Filchok, of the Giants, to throw Sunday's game.

Monaghan then submitted to (Continued on Page Two)

POLICEMAN SHOT WHILE ACTING AS PAPER BOY

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—A 19-year-old gunman today shot and seriously wounded a Detroit policeman selling "goodfellow" newspapers in downtown Detroit.

The bandit had just run from a jewelry store which he had attempted to rob. The bandit was captured shortly after the shooting.

The patrolman, Joseph Jakubczak, 29, assigned to the Trumbull station, was selling papers in front of a shoe store, a few feet away.

He heard someone yell "get that man" and as he turned and drew his revolver he was shot.

The gunman, Wallace D. Combs, who gave his address only as Kentucky was captured a moment later.

The officer was one of hundreds of former newsmen participating in the annual sale of "goodfellow" editions of Detroit newspapers for the benefit of needy children at Christmas time.

Blum Warns Democracy Is Threatened

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Premier Leon Blum warned the national assembly today that France is in danger of losing its democratic form of government.

With bluntness possible only from an elder statesman, the aged socialist charged the Communists and Popular Republicans for his failure to form a coalition government.

He declared:

"Can such a situation be allowed to continue?"

"Understand me well, I don't intend to put the parties on trial here—parties without whom democracy could not exist—but this democracy can exist only by agreement among Republican-minded persons."

"I implore you to maintain that agreement."

Blum said that France, like the world at present, is divided into two blocs and that such a division must not continue.

The 74-year-old premier, speaking slowly and with great sincerity, declared:

"Sacrifices must be demanded from the country."

"We are ready to assume responsibility for measures whose unpopularity will be felt before their beneficial effect."

He said that the sacrifices in question would include drastic economies, suppression of waste and careful use of all resources.

He declared that his program would end public uneasiness and would assure a balancing of the budget for the first three months of 1947, as well as to achieve the quick passage of laws designed to restore France's confidence in itself.

NEW HIGHWAY DIRECTOR TO BE M. D. SHAFFER

Herbert Appoints Mansfield And Columbus Man To Succeed Ford

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Gov. Elect Thomas J. Herbert named today Murray D. Shaffer, of Mansfield and Columbus, to be state highway director in the Herbert administration.

Shaffer, 43, will be the youngest man ever appointed to head the highway department. He will succeed Democrat Perry T. Ford in the $6,500-a-year position Jan. 13.

As director, Shaffer will have charge of a department which employs about 7,000 persons and, in addition, will have supervision over the highway patrol and the motor vehicles bureau. Shaffer served five years in the department as chief engineer for location and design, resigning in November, 1945, to become engineer-director of Macadam Pavements, Inc., a technical research organization with offices in Columbus.

Two Posts Open

The appointment leaves the governor-elect with only two more cabinet positions to fill—those of state industrial relations director and state liquor director. Herbert said he hoped to fill those in a week or 10 days.

Herbert said his selections were made difficult "under the handicap of the present salary structure" which limits directors to $6,500 a year. He said he intended to ask the incoming legislature to consider the report of the state salary study commission which recommends a boost to $9,000 for most directors, and to $10,000 for the chiefs of welfare and highways.

Salaries Too Low

The governor-elect expressed an opinion, also, that the salaries of elected state officials—$10,000 for the governor and $6,500 for the other office holders—were too low.

However, any legislative increase for elected officials could not be effective until the beginning of 1949 when new terms of office would begin. Increases for directors could be made effective immediately.

Herbert said he had not reached a conclusion on recommendations for possible increases for the rank and file of the 20,000 state workers.

The governor-designate said he had as yet no meetings scheduled, but that he intended to confer with legislative leaders before his inauguration.

Herbert will be in Columbus the first week of the incoming session. (Continued on Page Two)

FOUR YOUTHS ARE SENTENCED AT LANCASTER

LANCASTER, O., Dec. 17.—A trio of youthful Mansfield reformitory inmates, who terrorized central Ohio for several hours after their escape from the institution Nov. 20, had sizably increased sentences today.

Fairfield county common pleas Judge Harry Kilburger sentenced Lelan R. Earlenbaugh, 26; Akron and Donald W. Burton, 22, Canton to terms of 10 to 25 years in Ohio penitentiary for armed robbery and gave Robert J. Miller, 19, Cleveland, a similar term at Mansfield for the same offense.

Kilburger then added a one-to-20-year penalty to each sentence for automobile theft.

The trio was involved in the theft of a succession of autos and the kidnapping of three men following their escape from the reformitory's Grafton honor camp. All three entered guilty pleas.

Earlenbaugh was also involved in an attempted jail break two weeks ago during which he endeavored to overpower Sheriff Harley Highley.

PEARL HARBOR FIRE CAUSE IS BEING SOUGHT

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 17.—Navy investigators were assigned today to determine the cause of a spectacular Pearl Harbor fire in which two huge floating drydocks were damaged seriously.

Quick action on the part of Navy fire crews prevented the blaze from spreading to other installations or ships in the harbor. Three men were slightly burned combating the fire.

Fire fighters, under personal command of Adm. Louis Freller, Pearl Harbor commandant, shoved the flaming drydocks into the center of the harbor before the blaze could leap to shore installations.

Other floating drydocks were lashed together in a long row and pushed out to sea while fire crews extinguished the flames.

Firm Paid To Take Over War Surplus

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A congressional investigating committee was informed today that the United States maritime commission paid a shipbuilder $2,500,000 to take over and dispose of almost $39,000,000 in wartime surplus.

The information was placed before the house merchant marine committee by its counsel, Marvin Coles, at the opening of a probe into the disposal of wartime shipbuilding facilities by the maritime commission.

Coles declared that the contract was given to the California Shipbuilding corporation. The shipbuilding concern agreed to take over $25,000,000 in facilities and an estimated $14,000,000 in surplus material stored on the location and restore the shipyard to its original condition when it was leased by the government.

The shipyard was operated during the war, explained Coles, by the same corporation.

Coles added that a similar type of disposal was used in relinquishing controls of the Bethlehem-Fairfield corporation shipyards on the east coast.

Raymond McKeough, maritime commission member, explained to the committee that the government was obligated to restore to their original condition the lands leased during the war for shipbuilding operation.

HOUSING HEADS WORK ON PLANS

CIO, Housing Officials Blast New Truman Program Now Being Set Up

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The nation's new housing bosses today sketched rough drafts of orders which will put President Truman's control-slashing housing program into working togs.

Expediter Frank R. Creedon and national housing administrator Raymond Foley must decide how much the restriction on non-residential building is to be loosened, the floor-space limit on new homes and other details not covered in the President's general policy statement of last Saturday.

The bulk of the work falls on Creedon, since most of the controls now being removed were established through the expediter's office. He told reporters that he had a "good idea" of what form the new orders will take, but he wanted to consult his newly-acquired staff before making any decisions.

There were discordant sounds in the background as Creedon and Foley worked.

The loudest was made by R. J. Thomas, chairman of the CIO housing committee, who called the new approach to the housing problem "the death knell of the veterans' housing program."

The rest of the discord came from among housing officials themselves.

LONG RESTS IN BED HARMFUL, DOCTOR STATES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 17.—The old idea of an operation being good for at least a long rest in a hospital went flying out the windows today.

Members attending the clinical congress of the American college of surgeons in Cleveland were told yesterday that a long rest in bed caused several adverse developments in patients.

Dr. Howard Rusk, New York, reported on studies made at the University of Minnesota and Cornell university.

Among the adverse conditions resulting from a long post-operative stay in bed are an 11 per cent decrease in the size of the heart and marked inability to do sustained work, according to Dr. Rusk.

ATTACKS STATE LAWS Lawyer Claims Mississippi Corrupt Practices Act 'Isn't Any Good'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Forrest Jackson, attorney for Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., testified today that he helped liquidate a $3,000 loan to Bilbo in 1940 to protect the senator from "embarrassment" at the hands of Abe L. Shushan, former Huey Long lieutenant in New Orleans.

Jackson told the senate war investigating committee he contributed $750, then paid off $750 given by Edward P. Terry, Bilbo's then secretary, to keep Shushan from exposing the $3,000 loan transaction.

Robert M. Newton, Wiggins, Miss., turpentine dealer and lawyer gave $750 to the cause, Jackson testified.

Jackson said he learned yesterday from Shushan's own testimony that the Bilbo note was paid on July 15, 1940, the money to Shushan through Gray art, of New Hebron, Miss.

The attorney said he kept Bilbo until this year of the loan on an obligation originally incurred to help the senator meet a $21,000 alimony debt.

Jackson related that Terry called him and Newton to a luncheon meeting in August, 1940 and said that Shushan threatened to embarrass the senator by exposing the loan. Bilbo, Jackson said, was about to go out on a speaking tour for the Democratic national committee in the 1940 campaign.

Never Tried to Collect

Jackson said Bilbo later repaid Stewart for $750 he put up to write off the Shushan loan but that he, Jackson, never tried to collect his $1,500.

Newton said he couldn't recall paying his $750 until Bilbo and Jackson reminded him of it a few days ago. He said his bank records shows a $750 item for Aug. 31, 1940.

Earlier, Jackson told the committee that Mississippi's corrupt practices act isn't "any good—just like the hatch act."

Ohio Grange Head Urges Cooperation Of Farmers

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17—Group cooperation around a continuous conference table was recommended to the 74th annual convention of the Ohio State Grange today as a means of preventing economic chaos.

The recommendation was made by Joseph W. Fichter, state Grange master, in his annual report. Fichter declared:

"What we commonly call the law of supply and demand is not permitted to operate naturally to day. On account of monopolies exercised by individuals and by organized groups, production today in our modern technological society is a part of a national, even international, web of related activities."

"When we substituted machinery for handicraft we thought we were freeing ourselves from the slavery of back-breaking labor, but we have become a slave to the machine which we have created."

"In order to free ourselves from this situation, we have organized into groups and up to the present moment each group has tried to out-manuever and out-pressure the other in order to get what it considers to be its share."

Simple Plan Urged

Fichter pointed out that his recommendation of group cooperation "may appear too simple to be effective."

"However," he continued, "simplicity is a part of the pattern of nature, and as we follow natural laws closely in our human relationships we do not go very far wrong."

Fichter said the lack of transportation facilities is one of the main farm problems today. Despite abundant supplies of grain, he declared these facilities are not adequate to move the grain from the farms and elevators to the seaboard.

On international relationships, the Grange head asserted that

"universal disarmament can liberate man from fears of attack and also from the tremendous economic oppression created by the need of a large military force."

Fichter said the Grange recommended that the federal budget be balanced without delay by reducing expenditures and that efforts be made to retire part of the public debt each year.

"The perpetuation of the human family," Fichter concluded, "depends upon the people on the land."

"Therefore conservation of the soil is a matter of deepest concern to all."

Degree Work Stated

The evening session today was to be featured by the conferring of the sixth degree. The annual banquet tomorrow night will have for its speakers Gov. Elect Thomas J. Herbert and Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, who will fly from Washington.

Sessions end Thursday afternoon with the installation of officers.

Various exhibits were set up in advance of the formal opening of the convocation, with chief interest centering on its contest entries.

POLICE REPORT PARENTS PAID BOYS FOR THEFT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17—Columbus police held the mother, father and stepbrother today of two small boys who said they were rewarded for stealing large sums of money.

John Dixon, 12, and his brother, Charles, 8, told police they had stolen $200 from a commercial photo finishing firm and were given a dollar apiece "for bringing the money home to mother."

Police arrested Charles Dixon, Sr., 63, and his wife, Lela, 39, on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property and contributing to the delinquency of minors. A delinquency complaint was filed against William Dixon, 17, on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property.

The two youngsters told police they had committed several burglaries and thefts. Officials of the photographic firm, the E. R. Kissinger company, estimated damage done by the boys when they ransacked the establishment at nearly $2,000.

Two smaller children, aged five and three, were taken to juvenile center for safekeeping.

TERRY ON WAY TO TELL STORY IN BILBO CASE

MERIDIAN, Miss., Dec. 17—Edward Terry was en route to Washington today to tell the senate war investigating committee "the full story" of his seven years as secretary to Senator Theodore G. "The Man" Bilbo.

Before boarding a train for the capital, Terry said his health was "ruined" as a result of his association with Bilbo.

Terry said he had no part in investigating the investigation of gifts given Bilbo by war contractors.

ADVANCE NEWS SAID IGNORED

Solons Say Information On Pearl Harbor, Ardennes, Mussolini Discarded

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—A congressional committee declared today that American authorities "ignored" advance information on the Pearl Harbor attack, the German onslaught in the Ardennes, and the overthrow of Mussolini.

The charge was embodied in a report to the house by the military affairs committee in which it was recommended that congress make permanent the central intelligence authority established last January by President Truman by executive order.

The committee stated:

1. "The record of the joint senate-house committee investigating Pearl Harbor showed that a considerable number of important officials knew as a result of correctly evaluated intelligence that a sudden Japanese blow was to be expected the morning of Dec. 7, 1941."

2. "Any number of United States Army officers can testify to the fact that it was known as a result of correctly offered intelligence that a German force of alarming proportions was ready to deliver an attack in the Ardennes shortly before Christmas of 1944."

3. "Sometime prior to Mussolini's downfall a report came to the pentagon to the effect that a plot was being hatched against the Italian dictator and that at any appropriate moment he would be dismissed and his place taken by Badoglio."

This advance information, stated the committee, was "ignored or discarded." It added that the advance intelligence on Mussolini's (Continued on Page Two)

COLD WEATHER DUE TO ARRIVE DURING NIGHT

By International News Service

A mass of cold air from the Northwest was descending on Ohio today and was scheduled to drop the mercury between 10 and 15 degrees throughout the state tonight.

Weather bureau forecasters said that the latest cold snap would hang on through tomorrow, with the mercury probably getting on the upgrade by Thursday.

Blustery winds of from 25 to 30 miles an hour in velocity were to accompany the cold.

Rain and rising temperatures yesterday quickly brought the northern part of the state out of its worst traffic situation so far this winter. Freezing rain for a short period glazed streets and highways and many skidding accidents resulted.

RECORD SUGAR YIELD

FREMONT, O., Dec. 17—Production of a new season's record of 26,000,000 pounds of sugar was predicted today by the Great Lakes Sugar company in Fremont.

POLICEMAN SHOT WHILE ACTING AS PAPER BOY

DETROIT, Dec. 17—A 19-year-old gunman today shot and seriously wounded a Detroit policeman selling "goodfellow" newspapers in downtown Detroit.

The bandit had just run from a jewelry store which he had attempted to rob. The bandit was captured shortly after the shooting.

The patrolman, Joseph Jakubczak, 28, assigned to the Trumbull station, was selling papers in front of a shoe store, a few feet away.

He heard someone yell "get that man" and as he turned and drew his revolver he was shot.

The gunman, Wallace D. Combs, who gave his address only as Kentucky was captured a moment later.

The officer was one of hundreds of former newboys participating in the annual sale of "goodfellow" editions of Detroit newspapers for the benefit of needy children at Christmas time.

CLIFTON PLEADED NOT GUILTY IN COURT HERE

Due to an error in proofreading it was stated in Monday's Herald that George Clifton, Circleville, pleaded guilty in Mayor Ben H. Gordon's court recently on charges filed in connection with the investigation of recent burglaries.

Clifton pleaded not guilty and denied all charges in connection with the case.

MESSERSMITH CALLED HOME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Secretary of State Byrnes revealed today that he has invited ambassador to Argentina George Messersmith to return home for consultation on general matters in South America. Byrnes emphasized that he does not plan to ask Messersmith's resignation, as has been rumored.

THREATS MADE AGAINST FIXER

State's Attorney Wants Gambler In Pro Grid Case Kept In Jail

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—Assistant District Attorney George Monaghan revealed today in general sessions that threats have been made to kill Alvin J. Paris, who sought to bribe two New York Giant players before Sunday's pro football playoff with the Chicago Bears.

In asking the court to deny bail to the 28-year-old Broadway gambler, the district attorney said:

"A member of the police department informed me that he had received a telephone call to the effect that attempts would be made on the life of this defendant. I do know that he has been associated with gamblers who have felony convictions."

Monaghan told Judge Francis L. Valente that he would submit evidence by 3:30 p. m. this afternoon to back up his statements.

Before the argument over bail, Paris, through his counsel, Caesar Barra, pleaded innocent to a two-count indictment accusing him of attempting to bribe Merle Hapes and Frank Filchok, of the Giants, to throw Sunday's game.

Monaghan then submitted to (Continued on Page Two)

PEARL HARBOR FIRE CAUSE IS BEING SOUGHT

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 17—Navy investigators were assigned today to determine the cause of a spectacular Pearl Harbor fire in which two huge floating drydocks were damaged seriously.

Quick action on the part of Navy fire crews prevented the blaze from spreading to other installations or ships in the harbor. Three men were slightly burned combating the fire.

Fire fighters, under personal command of Adm. Louis Freller, Pearl Harbor commandant, showed the flaming drydocks into the center of the harbor before the blaze could leap to shore installations.

Other floating drydocks were lashed together in a long row and pushed out to sea while fire crews extinguished the flames.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

U. N. hall (vacancies) the U. N. made several spectacular gains in its session just ended. . . Siam was allowed to join and Rockefeller was allowed to contribute.

There were no surprises. . . The anti-capitalists furnished the arguments and the capitalists furnished the dough.

Plans are now going forward for a skyscraper temple of peace. . . Plans for putting industry underground for fear of the atom bomb are moving at about the same rate.

But there was considerable progress made. . . By the time the sessions ended, service in the cafeteria was perfect.

We are devoting this week to the bill of rights, then comes Christmas, then comes the Lewis case. . . Otherwise there is nothing of an usual nature ahead of us.

The bill of rights appears to be as popular as ever. . . Particularly with those who have memorized it for quotation to politicians.

JACKSON TELLS SENATE PROBERS OF LIQUIDATION

Attorney Says He Spent Money To Avoid Bilbo 'Embarrassment'

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., called the Mississippi law a "fraud upon the voters of Mississippi."

Jackson testified that his law firm received $1,945.30 in fees from war contracts which Bilbo helped Mississippi firms obtain on Army projects.

The defense counsel said his firm received $1,500 from the Volz Construction company on the key field project and $445.30 for "binding insurance" he handled on a contract.

Jackson gave his version of a Bilbo conference with former Rep. Ross Collins on soliciting Collins' support for the re-election of Wall Doney, now senate sergeant-at-arms.

The witness agreed with Collins that there was "nothing said to Collins" about payment of a Collins campaign deficit.

But he said it was his understanding that Cecil Travis, representing Collins, was given $11,000—$5,500 to meet future Doney expenses and $7,500 to pay for past expenses in Collins' unsuccessful first primary race.

Admits Paying Bills

Jackson reluctantly admitted he gave Terry money to pay office expenses of Bilbo in Washington. He said that Terry had advanced money to pay Bilbo's expenses and Terry was in "desperate circumstances, so I gave him the money he was out."

He testified that Terry asked him for money frequently during the years from 1938 to 1946 when Terry was Bilbo's secretary.

Jackson at first claimed he did not know whether the money he gave Terry—$11,000 at one time and $500 at another—was used for Terry's expenses or Bilbo's.

He said that Terry told him that he had "telephone, telegraph, hospital and personal bills" to pay. Jackson later said the $11,000 he "gave" Terry, in 1941, was to pay $1,000 for expenses Bilbo incurred in his 1940 election campaign.

He said the $500 was to help pay a $3,000 debt Bilbo owed Abe L. Shushan, New Orleans wholesale drygoods dealer who had a tax suit against him. The committee has been told that Bilbo intervened unsuccessfully to get Shushan's tax case settled.

The senate committee summoned a Mississippi Baptist minister today to help explain the shower of $7,500 in war contractor's contributions given Bilbo for construction of his church.

The pastor, the Rev. D. Wade Smith, of Poplarville, Miss., was called as a witness while the committee awaited arrival of Edward P. Terry, Bilbo's former secretary and a key figure in some of the senator's contract operations.

Committee counsel said they had wound up questioning of the contractors whom Bilbo helped win government business and who in turn built a lake and a swimming pool on his estate, bought him a car and painted his "dream house No. 1."

The committee heard testimony that:

1. Abe L. Shushan, New Orleans contractor and former Huey Long lieutenant, loaned Bilbo $3,000 through a friend and that the senator tried to help him win a favorable income tax case settlement. Shushan said he loaned the money to Grant Stewart, of New Hebron, Miss., but personally delivered it to Bilbo and received Bilbo's note. It was repaid in July, 1940.

2. Terry told Miss Virginia Simmerman, another former secretary to Bilbo, that Shushan had "threatened" to expose the loan during Bilbo's 1940 campaign. Miss Simmerman said Shushan conferred with Bilbo once in January 1940, and that Bilbo told her to keep the meeting "secret."

3. Bilbo tried "four or five times" to get the internal revenue bureau to make a "50-50" settlement in Shushan's income tax case. J. B. Winchell, chief counsel for the bureau, testified to the Bilbo efforts and said he told the senator the case would have to be handled in New Orleans where Mr. and Mrs. Shushan finally paid $120,000.

4. Bilbo received $8,400 in loans, $9,056 in what amounted to "gifts" for improvements on his Poplarville estate, and $7,605 for the Juniper Grove church.

Almost without exception, each of the gift-passing contractors testified that they just "happened to drop by" and found Bilbo struggling to improve his property. They volunteered to help and have never pressed Bilbo for payment for their services, they admitted.

CLIFTON FREED ON BOND FROM ATHENS COURT

George Clifton, 25, Route 4, Circleville, pleaded innocent Monday afternoon before Mayor Franz Worth at Athens to a charge of breaking and entering. Clifton was released under $5,000 cash bond which was posted by Circleville relatives.

Clifton was freed from the Pickaway county jail in Circleville, Sunday, following the posting of $25,000 property bond. Clifton and Orin Diltz, 24, both entered not guilty pleas Dec. 6 before Mayor Ben H. Gordon on charges of complicity in the $1,700 burglary of the American Legion, the $300 robbery of the veterans of Foreign Wars, and other Circleville burglaries and thefts. Bond was set at $25,000 each by Mayor Gordon. Diltz remains in the county jail in default of bond. The charges against Diltz and Clifton are scheduled to be placed before the next session of the county grand jury. When the grand jury will be convened is undetermined.

INCOME TAXES DISCUSSED AT KIWANIS MEET

Kenneth M. Robbins gave an interesting talk on income tax law changes at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening in Hanley's.

He told of the differences to be watched for in making out 1946 returns.

It was announced that tickets for the Mistletoe Ball, to be sponsored by the club, are now on sale. Proceeds from the dance will be used for the underprivileged children's work of the club.

Organization meeting of 1947 officers and directors will be held Tuesday night.

Annual Christmas party for children from the county home will be held in St. Philip's parish house next Monday night.

Deaths and Funerals

STAMBAUGH RITES

Funeral services for Walter Stambaugh, 49, of 156 Walnut street, grocer and member of the municipal board of public utilities and a former Washington C. H. city manager who died Monday morning in Mount Carmel hospital, Columbus, will be conducted at 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the First Methodist church, Circleville. The Rev. O. L. Ferguson and the Rev. Clarence Swearingen will officiate. There will be a Scottish Rite service in the church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Mr. Stambaugh was born June 5, 1897 in Johnson county, Ky., the son of Thomas Jefferson Stambaugh and Alafair Daniels Stambaugh, both now deceased.

Mr. Stambaugh is survived by his widow, Mrs. Matilda Griffith Stambaugh; three daughters, Mrs. Cecil R. Webb, 972 South Pickaway street; and Miss Loraine Stambaugh and Miss Lucille Stambaugh, both at home; four brothers, Arthur Stambaugh, Lucasville; Rufus Stambaugh, Allen, Ky.; Luther Stambaugh, Blaine, Ky.; and Ray Stambaugh, Pickerington; and a sister, Mrs. Jay Moore, Mattie, Ky.

Friends may call at the Deffenbaugh funeral home after 7 p. m. Tuesday and at the Stambaugh residence after 1 p. m. Wednesday.

MRS. CHARLOTTE HALL

Mrs. Charlotte Hall, 84, widow of Charles Hall, of Mead, died at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Fortner, 165 West Main street, Circleville, following a 7-month illness. She had lived with her daughter for the past 8 months.

Mrs. Hall was born in Hocking county Dec. 16, 1862. She was a member of the Salem Methodist church at Mead.

Survivors include another daughter, Mrs. Jerry Estell, Amanda; four sons, Ralph Hall, Kingston; Walter Hall and Leslie Hall, both of Columbus; and Milton Hall, Detroit, Mich.; and 8 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The body was removed to Mrs. Hall's home at Mead where friends may call after noon Wednesday.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Salem Methodist church at Mead. The Rev. Carl Wilson, Circleville, will officiate. Burial will be in the Salem cemetery under the direction of the Whitel funeral home, Chillicothe.

SPRADLIN RITES

Funeral services for James Edward Spradlin, 4-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Spradlin who was found dead at 7:45 a. m. Monday in his crib in the Spradlin home in Muhlenberg township on Route 3, Circleville, will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday in the Church of Christ in Christian Union. The Rev. O. L. Ferguson and the Rev. Harrison McCain will officiate. Burial will be in the Jackson Township cemetery at Fox.

Friends may call Tuesday night at the home of the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Spradlin, on the Island road one mile west of Circleville.

Survivors include the maternal grandparents, George Seymour, Marion, and Mrs. Ailie Chilcote, Lovers Lane; great-grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Stanley, Bonanza, Ky.; and great-grandfather, William Arledge, South Washington street.

MRS. C. EUGENE MEYERS

Mrs. Lola Meyers, 81, wife of C. Eugene Meyers, of near Stoutsville, died at 10 p. m. Monday in White Cross hospital, Columbus, where she had been a medical patient since Dec. 3.

Besides her husband Mrs. Meyers is survived by two sons, Edgar Meyers, manager of Gold Cliff Park; and George R. Meyers, Maywood, Ill.; and three sisters, Mrs. Charles Wise, East Mound street; and Mrs. Belle Barr and Mrs. Ollie Black, both of Lancaster.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home, are incomplete.

LEGION TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—National Commander Paul H. Griffith announced today that the American Legion has accepted an invitation from President George Bidault of France to engage in a pilgrimage to his country and to hold part of the Legion 1947 national convention in Paris.

tion, which begins Jan. 6, a week before he becomes governor.

Planned Postwar Projects

As chief of location and design for the highway department, Shaffer was responsible for the drafting of the postwar highway program which, as director, he will now carry into effect.

He will construct new highways in cooperation with the federal public roads administration, which in 1944 set aside $60,000,000 for three years for the state to be matched with state funds.

"His familiarity with the postwar program, as well as with general administration of the department, gives him an exceptional background," Herbert said in announcing the appointment.

Shaffer is a graduate of Mansfield high school, and received his civil engineering degree from Ohio University at Athens. He began his professional career in 1925 as deputy Richard county engineer in charge of design and construction.

Worked As Engineer

He then was a consulting engineer for several years, specializing in municipal and sanitary engineering, and later served as Mansfield safety and service director. In 1939 he was appointed division engineer of district three of the state highway department, with headquarters at Ashland by Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beighler, then highway director.

In 1940, Highway Director Hal G. Sours named Shaffer chief of the bureau of location and design. Shaffer is a Mason and a member of the Ohio and national societies of professional engineers and the Columbus engineers club. He maintains legal residence at Mansfield, but lives with his wife at 1650 Wyandott road, Columbus.

POLICE PROBING VIOLENT DEATH CASE AT NEWARK

NEWARK, O., Dec. 17.—The husband of a prominent 35-year-old Newark matron, whose severed body was found on railroad tracks under mysterious circumstances, was questioned by Newark police today.

The victim was Mrs. Frank Rodamer, the mother of two sons. Her body was found on the tracks a hundred feet from her badly damaged automobile.

The death was discovered several hours after she had taken her husband to the railroad station to catch a train for Chicago. Rodamer returned to Newark from Chicago last night and was to be questioned by Police Chief Gail Christman.

Christman revealed that another man had been questioned about the death but that no lead had developed.

Authorities did not indicate that they believed Mrs. Rodamer had met with foul play necessarily.

CORN PRODUCTS COMPANY ANNOUNCES LOWER PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Corn Products Refining company, today announced reduced prices for its products to conform with cheaper operating costs.

The price of corn has been declining and has been available in larger volume for the past several weeks. As a result the company was able to produce more of its products at slightly reduced values. A company spokesman said however that the decline in prices will not necessarily mean a noticeable reduction in retail levels.

ARGENTINE LOANS PLANNED

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17.—Virtually every Argentine wage earner was assured a low-interest plan for home construction today under a new housing plan announced by President Juan Peron.

Mack Flies Home To Be With Wife

Following an airplane trip from Columbus, Lawrence Mack, formerly of Circleville and nephew of Charles L. Mack, 813 North Court street, Tuesday was at the bedside of his wife, Mrs. Mary Jane Mack, 27-year-old former high school beauty queen, at Warm Springs, Ga. She is suffering from infantile paralysis.

The Mackes reside at Newark where Lawrence Mack, a World War II veteran, is manager of a Big Bear super-market.

The couple stepped into a plane Sunday at Port Columbus for the air journey to Warm Springs arranged by the Licking county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Mrs. Mack, 10 years ago selected as the West High school beauty queen at Columbus, hopes to be able to walk again after treatments at Warm Springs. She was once completely incapacitated by infantile paralysis.

After entering the Children's hospital, Columbus, on Oct. 11, 1945, she spent 14 weeks in an iron lung and regained the use of the upper portion of her body. Further treatment, at Warm Springs, was made possible through the "March of Dimes" campaign. Expenses of the plane trip to Georgia have been paid by the Licking county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

On the eve of the journey a Christmas party for Mrs. Mack was held Saturday night in the Children's hospital.

Her husband, who left Circleville several years ago, was with the Army and was stationed at Hawaii while Mrs. Mack was employed as a stenographer at the Canteen company at Newark when she became ill. Their 5-year-old son, David, now lives with her sister at Bellefontaine.

Mack flew to Columbus from Hawaii to be at Mrs. Mack's side and he accompanied her to Warm Springs where he will remain until after Christmas.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mack, former Circleville residents, now reside at Columbus.

BRITISH UNHAPPY OVER U. S. CUT IN GRAIN EXPORT

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Food Minister John Strachey, who was to leave for Washington at midnight in connection with an impending cut in United States grain deliveries, was understood to have postponed the trip today.

The situation, which threatened a cut in Britain's bread ration, was believed to have so changed that Strachey may even abandon the trip.

The London Evening News referred to the American announcement on the grain cut as "the shock from Washington" and asked editorially:

"How long is this unplanned and ignominious leaning on the United States and living from hand to mouth going to last?"

The U. S. department of agriculture announcement that only 84,000 tons of grain will be shipped to Britain next month made gloomy pre-Christmas reading in the country's newspapers.

THREATS MADE AGAINST FIXER

Judge Valente the 40-page confession from Paris and urged the court to read the document. Mo-naghan said "Paris has read it over carefully," corrected and signed the statement page by page, as well as at the end.

Barra insisted that bail be fixed for Paris and the prosecutor asked that the case be set for trial for Thursday.

Both Hapes and Filchick testified before the grand jury yesterday but their testimony was secret and all either would say to reporters was that "we don't know a thing."

The indictment returned by the grand jury against Paris was more specific. It charged that on "Dec. 8, Paris promised and offered a professional football player, Merle Alison Hapes, a member of the New York football Giants, the sum of $25,000 in United States currency and promised and offered to bet for the benefit of Hapes the sum of $1,000 with the intent to influence Hapes to lose and try to lose and cause to be lost a professional football game between the Chicago Bears and New York Giants scheduled for Dec. 15, 1946, in which Hapes was to be a player and participant."

A second and identical indictment was returned against Paris except Filchick was named as the man offered the bribe instead of Hapes.

Neither Hapes nor Filchick accepted the bribe, police said. Hapes was dropped from the team for the game but Filchick played and his expert passes scored the two touchdowns scored by the Giants. The Bears won the game 24-14.

At least three other persons, authorities said, were involved in the attempted bribery. They are known to the police and district attorneys office but have not been named.

BYRNES HOPEFUL GERMAN TREATY ACTION SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Secretary of State Byrnes expressed hope today that efforts now underway to draft peace treaties for the five Axis satellite nations will speed action on the German and Austrian pacts.

Byrnes discussed at a news conference the results of the "big four" meeting in New York and the work of the United Nations. He said he shared fully the optimistic statements of Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and British Foreign Minister Bevin on the future relations of the big four.

The secretary noted that work on the five satellite treaties has been underway since July, 1945. Byrnes said his statement does not mean that all difficulties have been overcome. He recalled that he has tried for months to get the ministers' deputies to work on the German and Austrian drafts.

downfall was "ignored" because there was so little to go on."

The committee declared: "These were mistakes indeed, shocking, terrible, costly utterly unworthy of an America strong enough and wise enough to match strength and wits with competitors in the modern world."

The committee recommended that the central intelligence authority set up by the chief executive be authorized by congress in order to give it "a firmer base," that it be headed by a civilian director appointed for 10 years at a salary of $12,000 annually, and that it concern itself solely with "collecting, evaluating and disseminating" intelligence.

JACKSON TELLS SENATE PROBERS OF LIQUIDATION

Attorney Says He Spent Money To Avoid Bilbo 'Embarrassment'

what other committees might expect.

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., called the Mississippi law a "fraud upon the voters of Mississippi."

Jackson testified that his law firm received $1,945.30 in fees from war contracts which Bilbo helped Mississippi firms obtain on Army projects.

Fees Received
The defense counsel said his firm received $1,500 from the Volz Construction company on the key field project and $445.30 for "binder insurance" he handled on a contract.

Jackson gave his version of a Bilbo conference with former Rep. Ross Collins on soliciting Collins' support for the re-election of Wall Doney, now senate sergeant-at-arms.

The witness agreed with Collins that there was "nothing said to Collins" about payment of a Collins campaign deficit.

But he said it was his understanding that Cecil Travis, representing Collins, was given $11,000—$3,500 to meet future Doney expenses and $7,500 to pay for past expenses in Collins' unsuccessful first primary race.

Admits Paying Bills
Jackson reluctantly admitted he gave Terry money to pay office expenses of Bilbo in Washington.

He said that Terry had advanced money to pay Bilbo's expenses and Terry was in "desperate circumstances, so I gave him the money he was out."

He testified that Terry asked him for money frequently during the years from 1938 to 1946 when Terry was Bilbo's secretary.

Jackson at first claimed he did not know whether the money he gave Terry—$11,000 at one time and $500 at another—was used for Terry's expenses or Bilbo's.

He said that Terry told him that he had "telephone, telegraph, hospital and personal bills" to pay. Jackson later said the $11,000 he "gave Terry, in 1941, was to pay his expenses Bilbo incurred in his 1940 election campaign."

He said the $500 was to help pay a $3,000 debt Bilbo owed Abe L. Shushan, New Orleans wholesale drygoods dealer who had a tax suit against him. The committee has been told that Bilbo intervened unsuccessfully to get Shushan's tax case settled.

The senate committee summoned a Mississippi Baptist minister today to help explain the shower of $7,605 in war contractor's contributions given Bilbo for construction of his church.

The pastor, the Rev. D. Wade Smith, of Poplarville, Miss., was called as a witness while the committee awaited arrival of Edward P. Terry, Bilbo's former secretary and a key figure in some of the senator's contract operations.

Committee counsel said they had wound up questioning of the contractors whom Bilbo helped win government business and who in turn built a lake and a swimming pool on his estate, bought him a car and painted his "dream house No. 1."

The committee heard testimony that: 1. Abe L. Shushan, New Orleans contractor and former Huey Long lieutenant, loaned Bilbo $3,000 through a friend and that the senator tried to help him win a favorable income tax case settlement. Shushan said he loaned the money to Grant Stewart, of New Hebron, Miss., but personally delivered it to Bilbo and received Bilbo's note. It was repaid in July, 1940.

2. Terry told Miss Virginia Summerman, another former secretary to Bilbo, that Shushan had "threatened" to expose the loan during Bilbo's 1940 campaign. Miss Summerman said Shushan conferred with Bilbo once in January 1940, and that Bilbo told her to keep the meeting "secret."

3. Bilbo tried "four or five times" to get the internal revenue bureau to make a "50-50" settlement in Shushan's income tax case. J. B. Winchell, chief counsel for the bureau, testified to the Bilbo efforts and said he told the senator the case would have to be handled in New Orleans where Mr. and Mrs. Shushan finally paid $120,000.

4. Bilbo received $8,400 in loans, $9,056 in what amounted to "gifts" for improvements on his Poplarville estate, and $7,605 for the Juniper Grove church.

Almost without exception, each of the gift-passing contractors testified that they just "happened to drop by" and found Bilbo struggling to improve his property. They volunteered to help and have never pressed Bilbo for payment for their services, they admitted.

PAINT PRESIDENT DIES
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—George W. McKay, 40, president of the Dean and Barry paint company, died today of injuries received when he was struck by an auto Sunday as he attempted to cross route 33.

CLIFTON FREED ON BOND FROM ATHENS COURT

George Clifton, 25, Route 4, Circleville, pleaded innocent Monday afternoon before Mayor Franz Worth at Athens to a charge of breaking and entering. Clifton was released under $5,000 cash bond which was posted by Circleville relatives.

Clifton was freed from the Pickaway county jail in Circleville Sunday, following the posting of $25,000 property bond. Clifton and Orrin Diltz, 24, both entered not guilty pleas Dec. 6 before Mayor Ben H. Gordon on charges of complicity in the $1,700 burglary of the American Legion, the $300 robbery of the veterans of Foreign Wars, and other Circleville burglaries and thefts. Bond was set at $25,000 each by Mayor Gordon. Diltz remains in the county jail in default of bond. The charges against Diltz and Clifton are scheduled to be placed before the next session of the county grand jury. When the grand jury will be convened is undetermined.

INCOME TAXES DISCUSSED AT KIWANIS MEET

Kenneth M. Robbins gave an interesting talk on income tax law changes at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening in Hanley's. He told of the differences to be watched for in making out 1946 returns.

It was announced that tickets for the Mistletoe Ball, to be sponsored by the club, are now on sale. Proceeds from the dance will be used for the underprivileged children of the club.

Organization meeting of 1947 officers and directors will be held Tuesday night.

Annual Christmas party for children from the county home will be held in St. Philip's parish house next Monday night.

Deaths and Funerals

STAMBAUGH RITES

Funeral services for Walter Stambaugh, 49, of 156 Walnut street, grocer and member of the municipal board of public utilities and a former Washington C. H. city manager who died Monday morning in Mount Carmel hospital, Columbus, will be conducted at 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the First Methodist church, Circleville. The Rev. O. L. Ferguson and the Rev. Clarence Swearingen will officiate. There will be a Scottish Rite service in the church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Mr. Stambaugh was born June 5, 1897 in Johnson county, Ky., the son of Thomas Jefferson Stambaugh and Alafair Daniels Stambaugh, both now deceased.

Mr. Stambaugh is survived by his widow, Mrs. Matilda Griffith Stambaugh; three daughters, Mrs. Cecil R. Webb, 972 South Pickaway street; and Miss Loraine Stambaugh and Miss Lucille Stambaugh, both at home; four brothers, Arthur Stambaugh, Lucasville; Rufus Stambaugh, Allen, Ky.; Luther Stambaugh, Blaine, Ky.; and Ray Stambaugh, Pickerington; and a sister, Mrs. Jay Moore, Mattie, Ky.

Friends may call at the Deffenbaugh funeral home after 7 p. m. Tuesday and at the Stambaugh residence after 1 p. m. Wednesday.

MRS. CHARLOTTE HALL

Mrs. Charlotte Hall, 84, widow of Charles Hall, of Mead, died at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Fortner, 165 West Main street, Circleville, following a 7-month illness. She had lived with her daughter for the past 8 months.

Mrs. Hall was born in Hocking county Dec. 16, 1862. She was a member of the Salem Methodist church at Mead.

Survivors include another daughter, Mrs. Jerry Estell, Amanda; four sons, Ralph Hall, Kingston; Walter Hall and Leslie Hall, both of Columbus; and Milton Hall, Detroit, Mich.; and 8 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The body was removed to Mrs. Hall's home at Mead where friends may call after noon Wednesday.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Salem Methodist church at Mead. The Rev. Carl Wilson, Circleville, will officiate. Burial will be in the Salem cemetery under the direction of the Whitsett funeral home, Chillicothe.

SPRADLIN RITES

Funeral services for James Edward Spradlin, 4-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Spradlin who was found dead at 7:45 a. m. Monday in his crib in the Spradlin home in Muhlenberg township on Route 3, Circleville, will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday in the Church of Christ in Christian Union. The Rev. O. L. Ferguson and the Rev. Harrison McCain will officiate. Burial will be in the Jackson Township cemetery at Fox.

Friends may call Tuesday night at the home of the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Spradlin, on the Island road one mile west of Circleville.

Survivors include the maternal grandparents, George Seymour, Marion, and Mrs. Ailie Chilcote, Lovers Lane; great-grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Stanley, Bonanza, Ky.; and great-grandfather, William Arledge, South Washington street.

MRS. C. EUGENE MEYERS

Mrs. Lola Meyers, 81, wife of C. Eugene Meyers, of near Stoutsville, died at 10 p. m. Monday in White Cross hospital, Columbus, where she had been a medical patient since Dec. 3.

Besides her husband Mrs. Meyers is survived by two sons, Edgar Meyers, manager of Gold Cliff Park; and George R. Meyers, Maywood, Ill.; and three sisters, Mrs. Charles Wise, East Mound street; and Mrs. Belle Barr and Mrs. Ollie Black, both of Lancaster.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home, are incomplete.

LEGION TO FRANCE

tion, which begins Jan. 6, a week before he becomes governor.

Planned Postwar Projects
As chief of location and design for the highway department, Shaffer was responsible for the drafting of the postwar highway program which, as director, he will now carry into effect.

He will construct new highways in cooperation with the federal public roads administration, which in 1944 set aside $60,000,000 for three years for the state to be matched with state funds.

"His familiarity with the post-war program, as well as with general administration of the department, gives him an exceptional background," Herbert said in announcing the appointment.

Shaffer is a graduate of Mansfield high school, and received his civil engineering degree from Ohio University at Athens. He began his professional career in 1925 as deputy Richland county engineer in charge of design and construction.

Mack Flies Home To Be With Wife

Following an airplane trip from Columbus, Lawrence Mack, formerly of Circleville and nephew of Charles L. Mack, 813 North Court street, Tuesday was at the bedside of his wife, Mrs. Mary Jane Mack, 27-year-old former high school beauty queen, at Warm Springs, Ga. She is suffering from infantile paralysis.

The Macks reside at Newark where Lawrence Mack, a World War II veteran, is manager of a Big Bear super-market.

The couple stepped into a plane Sunday at Port Columbus for the air journey to Warm Springs arranged by the Licking county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Mrs. Mack, 10 years ago selected as the West High school beauty queen at Columbus, hopes to be able to walk again after treatments at Warm Springs. She was once completely incapacitated by infantile paralysis.

After entering the Children's hospital, Columbus, on Oct. 11, 1945, she spent 14 weeks in an iron lung and regained the use of the upper portion of her body. Further treatment, at Warm Springs, was made possible through the "March of Dimes" campaign. Expenses of the plane trip to Georgia have been paid by the Licking county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

On the eve of the journey a Christmas party for Mrs. Mack was held Saturday night in the Children's hospital.

Her husband, who left Circleville several years ago, was with the Army and was stationed at Hawaii while Mrs. Mack was employed as a stenographer at the Canteen company at Newark when she became ill. Their 5-year-old son, David, now lives with her sister at Bellefontaine.

Mack flew to Columbus from Hawaii to be at Mrs. Mack's side and he accompanied her to Warm Springs where he will remain until after Christmas.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mack, former Circleville residents, now reside at Columbus.

BRITISH UNHAPPY OVER U. S. CUT IN GRAIN EXPORT

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Food Minister John Strachey, who was to leave for Washington at midnight in connection with an impending cut in United States grain deliveries, was understood to have postponed the trip today.

The situation, which threatened a cut in Britain's bread ration, was believed to have so changed that Strachey may even abandon the trip.

The London Evening News referred to the American announcement on the grain cut as "the shock from Washington" and asked editorially:

"How long is this unplanned and ignominious leaning on the United States and living from hand to mouth going to last?"

The U. S. department of agriculture announcement that only 84,000 tons of grain will be shipped to Britain next month made gloomy pre-Christmas reading in the country's newspapers.

SCRIBE WISHES PUBLIC COULD WITNESS PROBE

Many Angles Of Bilbo Case
Fail To Get In Any
Official Records

BY KENNETH L. DIXON
INS Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Since television seems to be the coming thing, it is too bad that it is not yet in such popular use that the senate hearings into the war contract "gratuity" charges against Senator Theodore G. Bilbo could be televised.

For one thing, the multiple phases of the probe make it perhaps the most important such congressional inquiry conducted here during the past generation. It is one which should be scrutinized closely by every American citizen.

For another, the important undercurrents of personal conduct and appearance which run through the proceedings almost defy description. They have to be seen to be fully appreciated — in their very implication.

The three shadowy suggestions which hover over the hearing like witches over a steaming cauldron are questions which threaten the very basis of American democratic government:

1—Are seats in the nation's highest legislative body peddled with impunity among professional politicians, often for cash on the line?

2—Did certain legislators so lose their sense of responsibility to the dead and the dying during the recent war as to sell to the highest bidder their influence in the granting of war contracts?

3—Is the refusal of the right to vote to some minority groups going to continue to be standard operating procedure in certain sections of the country?

Technically speaking, only the second of those three questions is the official concern of the committee. Hence, reporters and commentators — faced with the herculean task of recounting the proceedings — must confine themselves largely to the developments on that score.

However, the presence of the other two problems daily is dramatically underscored. Two incidents best illustrate this.

On Friday, one witness was testifying that defeated primary candidates in Mississippi accepted cash on the line in return for switching their support to the men who defeated them. Technically, its only connection with the hearing was to divulge what had been done with certain alleged donations made by war contractors.

Just as he was alleging that payments were made to one such defeated candidate, the witness was knocked from the stand by that very candidate. The hearings were recessed in the resultant melee.

When the witness returned to the stand on Saturday, he did an inexplicable about-face, insisting that he never meant to imply that the candidate had directly received any of the money.

What happened in the meantime to change his point of view or refresh his memory is anybody's guess — but one other candidate he had named frankly admitted receiving such money — and the importance of the unofficial, still unsettled, question remained underscored.

On that same day, Senator Mead, New York Democrat who heads the committee, asked a witness if "everybody in Mississippi" can vote. Although the senator had opened the hearings with the assertion that no questions of ideological import would be asked, there was no mistaking his meaning. And while the witness withered and twisted his words in a vague response, the silent Negroes sitting scattered through the rear of the caucus room smiled in grim appreciation of the question's irony. An Senator Bilbo sucked in his hollow cheeks, puckered his head in chiding mockery at Mead.

It is impossible to describe the discordant tones in the chorus of laughter which ran around the room at that point as it is to picture with words the molten anger which spread like masks over the faces of many men present when the testimony about paying off defeated candidates was introduced.

Nor can any factual report on the official phases of the hearing adequately explain the attitude of many of the war contractors present. Sitting in groups, they seemed to take confidence from their companions and often chuckled

SCRIBE WISHES PUBLIC COULD WITNESS PROBE

Many Angles Of Bilbo Case
Fail To Get In Any
Official Records

BY KENNETH L. DIXON
INS Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Since television seems to be the coming thing, it is too bad that it is not yet in such popular use that the senate hearings into the war contract "gratuity" charges against Senator Theodore G. Bilbo could be televised.

For one thing, the multiple phases of the probe make it perhaps the most important such congressional inquiry conducted here during the past generation. It is one which should be scrutinized closely by every American citizen. For another, the important undercurrents of personal conduct and appearance which run through the proceedings almost defy description. They have to be seen to be fully appreciated — in their very implication.

The three shadowy suggestions which hover over the hearing like witches over a steaming cauldron are questions which threaten the very basis of American democratic government:

1—Are seats in the nation's highest legislative body peddled with impunity among professional politicians, often for cash on the line?

2—Did certain legislators so lose their sense of responsibility to the dead and the dying during the recent war as to sell to the highest bidder their influence in the granting of war contracts?

3—Is the refusal of the right to vote to some minority groups going to continue to be standard operating procedure in certain sections of the country?

Technically speaking, only the second of those three questions is the official concern of the committee. Hence, reporters and commentators — faced with the herculean task of recounting the proceedings — must confine themselves largely to the developments on that score.

However, the presence of the other two problems daily is dramatically underscored. Two incidents best illustrate this.

On Friday, one witness was testifying that defeated primary candidates in Mississippi accepted cash on the line in return for switching their support to the men who defeated them. Technically, its only connection with the hearing was to divulge what had been done with certain alleged donations made by war contractors.

Just as he was alleging that payments were made to one such defeated candidate, the witness was knocked from the stand by that very candidate. The hearings were recessed in the resultant melee.

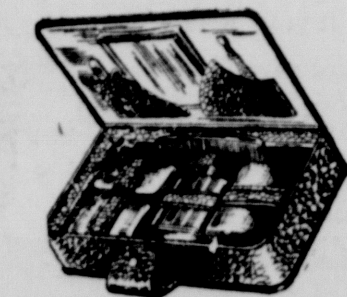

When the witness returned to the stand on Saturday, he did an inexplicable about-face, insisting that he never meant to imply that the candidate had directly received any of the money.

What happened in the meantime to change his point of view or refresh his memory is anybody's guess — but one other candidate he had named frankly admitted receiving such money — and the importance of the unofficial, still unsettled, question remained underscored.

On that same day, Senator Mead, New York Democrat who heads the committee, asked a witness if "everybody in Mississippi" can vote. Although the senator had opened the hearings with the assertion that no questions of ideological import would be asked, there was no mistaking his meaning. And while the witness writhed and twisted his words in a vague response, the silent Negroes sitting scattered through the rear of the caucus room smiled in grim appreciation of the question's irony. An Senator Bilbo sucked in his hollow cheeks, puckered his gnome-like face and shook his head in chiding mockery at Mead.

It is impossible to describe the discordant tones in the chorus of laughter which ran around the room at that point as it is to picture with words the molten anger which spread like masks over the faces of many men present when the testimony about paying off defeated candidates was introduced.

Nor can any factual report on the official phases of the hearing adequately explain the attitude of many of the war contractors present. Sitting in groups, they seemed to take confidence from their companions and often chuckled and chortled more like unrepentant schoolboys, caught in the act of shooting spitballs, than like well-to-do adult American citizens, faced with charges of grim and major import.

Once the committee reaches an official decision, it will concern one point only — whether or not Senator Bilbo accepted "gratuities" in return for influencing the granting of war contracts.

But the other questions run through the hearings like recurring revelations — like powerful undertones which sometimes threaten to drown out the official issue involved.

And it's too bad that every American citizen can not personally witness the entire proceedings.

Mrs. James Reisinger and her daughter, Mrs. Harold Nixon were injured Saturday night, when Mrs. Nixon lost control of her car and it crashed through the railing, near the Kinnikinnick bridge, on Route 159, about four miles South of Kingston. Another daughter, Mrs. Frank Phillips of Chillicothe and Davy Lee, two year old son of Mrs. Nixon were also in the car. All were taken to the Chillicothe hospital where Mrs. Phillips and Davy Lee were given first aid and released. Mrs. Nixon received a bad scalp wound, which required 14 stitches to close and she was discharged Sunday. Mrs. Reisinger suffered a broken nose, broken right collar-bone and five fractured ribs. She was removed to Mercy hospital, Columbus, Sunday afternoon.

TOP PICKAWAY GAME TO DRAW CAPACITY CROWD

New Holland Picked To Win Over Williamsport In Home Gym Wednesday

Biggest game in the Pickaway county basketball league schedule to date will be played Wednesday night at New Holland.

Participants in the feature attraction will be Williamsport and New Holland, both undefeated in league play. Both teams are big and rated highly by their followers and opponents alike.

An overflow crowd is expected to pack the New Holland gym long before the reserve teams of the two schools meet in the first game on the program.

Most fans believe the teams are well-matched but New Holland is favored to win. The home floor advantage is the biggest factor in this favorite picking.

Jim Cornhill, New Holland, who has been putting out a weekly dope sheet in which he picks the county league winners, admits he slipped last week when he said Walnut would win at Williamsport but Tuesday he came up with a flock of "alibis" on why Walnut lost and why he missed his first game. Most of the blame went to the home floor advantage enjoyed by Williamsport.

This week he gives New Holland the nod and predicts Williamsport will lose by six points.

Standing room only signs also are expected Friday night at Monroe when the Monroe and Walnut teams, each with one league defeat, battle. Cornhill rates Walnut the winner by three points.

League play for this week starts Tuesday night when Salt Creek plays at Darby. Cornhill's favorite is Salt Creek by 33 points.

In other games Friday he rates Jackson a two point overtime winner over Washington; Ashville by 22 points over Perry.

GOV. LAUSCHE IN CAPITAL TO CUT RED TAPE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17—Governor Lausche was to fly to Washington today in an effort to untangle government red tape so that the state can acquire formal title to the Army's former Fletcher General hospital which Ohio is now operating as the Cambridge state hospital.

The governor said that he also hoped to arrange "a courtesy call" on President Truman, although he has no appointment.

Lausche planned to confer with William E. Cage, chief of the disposal division of the WAA, on the hospital problem. He intends to urge the WAA to proceed with an appraisal of the hospital at Cambridge so that the state will know what it has to do to complete the negotiations.

Lausche is scheduled to return to Columbus tonight by plane.

TWO NEW MEMBERS JOIN BOY SCOUT TROOP 121

Weekly meeting of Boy Scout troop 121 was held Monday night with Bill Stout, officer of the day, in charge. Colors were posted by Jack Kneese and Richard Justice led the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

At the investiture service Jim Arledge and Kenneth Weaver were made members of the troop and presented their tenderfoot pins. Bob Brehmer, chairman of the troop committee, helped the scoutmaster in the first aid project. Scouts practiced artificial respiration and made different bandages.

During the patrol period, Scouts completed projects. The meeting closed with the scoutmaster's benediction.

Tuesday night Scouts will be guests of their sponsors, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at a banquet in the Pickaway Arms.

Davis And Blanchard Slated To Play In NFL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—The National Football league finally got around to considering proposed rule changes at its executive meeting today after engaging in lengthy wrangles over the player draft.

Among the suggestions up for action are proposals to eliminate the point after touchdown, and to use extra periods to determine the winner in all games.

The story behind the story of the player draft at last night's meeting is that Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, Army's All-American goal dust twins, probably will play in the NFL next season, according to authoritative sources.

KOMEDY KINGS RATED HIGHLY

Colored Stars Will Stage Antics Against Pros Here Wednesday

The New York Comedy Kings, one of pro basketball's most interesting quintets will make their initial appearance in Circleville Wednesday night when they face the Columbus Pros at Roll and Bowl. The main game will start at 8:30, preceded by a preliminary at 7:30 between Blue Ribbon and Worthington.

Not only are the Comedy Kings an aggressive group of hoopers with tremendous drawing power, they also rate tops in showmanship. Like most really good colored teams, they handle the ball like a hot potato and as a result have been dubbed "Whiz Kids" by sports writers all over the Middle-West.

Every player on the Comedy Kings is a former collegiate star with several rating All-American recognition in sepa circles. Perhaps the top crowd pleaser is flashy Billy Copeland, an All-American from South Carolina State who was selected as the No. 1 player in America at the national Negro inter-collegiate tournament held in Renaissance hall room, New York City, in the Spring of 1943.

Not far behind "Cope" and equally colorful is Frankie Clemmons, who as a member of Toledo University, made the All-Madison Square Garden quintet in 1942. Clemmons has just returned from service where he was a Major in the Army.

Leon Jones, who gave up a berth with the highly reputed New York Renaissance to campaign with the "Kings" is well on his way to eclipse both Copeland and Clemmons as a valuable player.

Maxie McCray of Tuskegee University down in Alabama and Casey Jones of Paul Quinn college, a Texas colored school, form a tough guard combination.

Capable replacements, none of whom will weaken the "Kings" include Shanty Barnett of Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tennessee, Delroy Taylor of Los Angeles Bull Dog fame, and Howard Haines, who as a member of Toledo Woodward high school was generally acclaimed all-state in the 1944-45 state tournament.

down twins want to play on the same club, according to this source, and the club owners are heartily in agreement with the idea because they do not want to break up a tremendous gate attraction.

Arms and the Men

FIGHTING for the ball, Kerwin Conners, No. 11, of the Boston Celtics and Stan Stutz, No. 7, of the New York Knickerbockers, come up in a tangle of arms. Action is from a pro game in New York. (International)

HAL NEWHOUSER IS TOP PITCHER

Official AL Records Show Detroit Ace, Ferriss, Feller Hogged Honors

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—Hal Newhouser, Detroit's sterling southpaw, annexed top pitching laurels in the American League in 1946 in a brilliant three-cornered contest with Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians and Dave (Boo) Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox.

Official league records, released today, show that these three grabbed practically all the hurling honors in the junior circuit.

Newhouser ranked first on the list in earned runs, with 1.94 per game. His leading mark in 1945 was 1.81 per game.

Prince Hal's 26 victories tied him with Feller for the circuit's high win total.

Ferriss, who was right behind this pair with 25 victories, beat out Newhouser in the won and lost column. Dave lost only six games for a mark of .806, while Hal's nine defeats left him with .743 for a percentage mark.

Ferriss, however, gave up the most runs, 109, and the most earned runs, 99.

Feller, in addition to being third in the earned run column with a mark of 2.18, grabbed off many "mosts" in the records. Rapid Robert hung up a new major league record for strikeouts for a season, with 348. This broke a record which had stood since 1904.

Bob appeared in more games than any other hurler, 48. He pitched the most innings, 371. He was high in complete games pitched, 36. He allowed the most hits, 277, and the most walks, 153.

In addition to a no-hitter against New York on April 30, Feller turned in two one-hitters, two three-hitters, four four-hitters and 10 shutouts.

The league had no less than five 20-game winners. They were Newhouser, Feller, Ferriss, Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees and Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox.

TOP PICKAWAY GAME TO DRAW CAPACITY CROWD

New Holland Picked To Win Over Williamsport In Home Gym Wednesday

Biggest game in the Pickaway county basketball league schedule to date will be played Wednesday night at New Holland.

Participants in the feature attraction will be Williamsport and New Holland, both undefeated in league play. Both teams are big and rated highly by their followers and opponents alike.

An overflow crowd is expected to pack the New Holland gym long before the reserve teams of the two schools meet in the first game on the program.

Most fans believe the teams are well-matched but New Holland is favored to win. The home floor advantage is the biggest factor in this favorite picking.

Jim Cornhill, New Holland, who has been putting out a weekly dope sheet in which he picks the county league winners, admits he slipped last week when he said Walnut would win at Williamsport but Tuesday he came up with a flock of "alibis" on why Walnut lost and why he missed his first game. Most of the blame went to the home floor advantage enjoyed by Williamsport.

This week he gives New Holland the nod and predicts Williamsport will lose by six points.

Standing room only signs also are expected Friday night at Monroe when the Monroe and Walnut teams, each with one league defeat, battle. Cornhill's favorite is the winner by three points.

League play for this week starts Tuesday night when Salt Creek plays at Darby. Cornhill's favorite is Salt Creek by 33 points.

In other games Friday he rates Jackson a two point overtime winner over Washington; Ashville by 22 points over Perry.

GOV. LAUSCHE IN CAPITAL TO CUT RED TAPE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17—Governor Lausche was to fly to Washington today in an effort to untangle government red tape so that the state can acquire formal title to the Army's former Fletcher General hospital which Ohio is now operating as the Cambridge state hospital.

The governor said that he also hoped to arrange "a courtesy call" on President Truman, although he has no appointment.

Lausche planned to confer with William R. Cagle, chief of the disposal division of the WAA, on the hospital problem. He intends to urge the WAA to proceed with an appraisal of the hospital at Cambridge so that the state will know what it has to do to complete the negotiations.

Lausche is scheduled to return to Columbus tonight by plane.

TWO NEW MEMBERS JOIN BOY SCOUT TROOP 121

Weekly meeting of Boy Scout troop 121 was held Monday night with Bill Stout, officer of the day, in charge. Colors were posted by Jack Kneese and Richard Justice led the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

At the investiture service Jim Arledge and Kenneth Weaver were made members of the troop and presented their tenderfoot pins. Bob Brehrer, chairman of the troop committee, helped the scoutmaster in the first aid project. Scouts practiced artificial respiration and made different bandages.

During the patrol period, Scouts completed projects. The meeting closed with the scoutmaster's benediction.

Tuesday night Scouts will be guests of their sponsors, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at a banquet in the Pickaway Arms.

Davis And Blanchard Slated To Play In NFL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—The National Football league finally got around to considering proposed rule changes at its executive meeting today after engaging in lengthy wrangles over the player draft.

Among the suggestions up for action are proposals to eliminate the point after touchdown, and to use extra periods to determine the winner in all games.

The story behind the story of the player draft at last night's meeting is that Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, Army's All-American goal line twins, probably will play in the NFL next season, according to authoritative sources.

KOMEDY KINGS RATED HIGHLY

Colored Stars Will Stage Antics Against Pros Here Wednesday

The New York Comedy Kings, one of pro basketball's most interesting quintets will make their initial appearance in Circleville Wednesday night when they face the Columbus Pros at Roll and Bowl. The main game will start at 8:30, preceded by a preliminary at 7:30 between Blue Ribbon and Worthington.

Not only are the Comedy Kings an aggressive group of hoopers with tremendous drawing power, they also rate tops in showmanship. Like most really good colored teams, they handle the ball like a hot potato and as a result have been dubbed "Whiz Kids" by sports writers all over the Middle-West.

Every player on the Comedy Kings is a former collegiate star with several rating All-American recognition in sepi circles. Perhaps the top crowd pleaser is flashy Billy Copeland, an All-American from South Carolina State who was selected as the No. 1 player in America at the national Negro inter-collegiate tournament held in Renaissance ball room, New York City, in the Spring of 1943.

Not far behind "Cope" and equally colorful is Frankie Clemmons, who as a member of Toledo University, made the All-Madison Square Garden quintet in 1942. Clemmons has just returned from service where he was a Major in the Army.

Leon Jones, who gave up a berth with the highly reputed New York Renaissance to campaign with the "Kings" is well on his way to eclipse both Copeland and Clemmons as a valuable player.

Maxie McCray of Tuskegee University down in Alabama and Casey Jones of Paul Quinn college, a Texas colored school, form a tough guard combination.

Capable replacements, none of whom will weaken the "Kings" include Shanty Barnett of Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tennessee, Delroy Taylor of Los Angeles Bull Dog fame, and Howard Haines, who as a member of Toledo Woodward high school was generally acclaimed all-state in the 1944-45 state tournament.

down twins want to play on the same club, according to this source, and the club owners are heartily in agreement with the idea because they do not want to break up a tremendous gate attraction.

CIO COMMITTEES ARE PLANNING WAGE DEMANDS

Representatives of USW, UEW Meet To Draft New Schedule

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 17—Over-all demands to be made on two of the nation's largest industries will be formulated today when the executive committees of the CIO United Steelworkers and the United Electrical Workers go into secret sessions in Pittsburgh.

CIO President Philip Murray, who also heads the 853,000 steelworkers, declined to disclose "prematurely" what wage demands would be made on the steel and automobile industries.

Murray, who acted as spokesman for the big three—President Walter P. Reuther of the automobile workers and Albert J. Fitzgerald, head of the electrical workers—at a secret session—reiterated they did not intend to set any blanket wage demands and pointed out each union will decide its own individual case.

The CIO president said the committees will study portal-to-portal pay, a guaranteed annual wage, welfare and health plans.

Reuther earlier announced that a 23.5 wage increase demand will be made on the automobile industry. He said it was not an arbitrary figure but arrived at by an independent study of automotive economics.

Labor leaders indicated that the steel workers will make a 25 per cent demand on steel as they did earlier this year when they went out for a $2-a-day wage increase. The electrical workers have not committed themselves, but they are expected to follow the steelworkers' lead.

The big three earlier approved the Nathan report which claims business can absorb a 25 per cent wage increase without boosting prices and declared it a guide post to the nation's labor problems.

Murray called for a "peaceful settlement" of the demands, but said whether they can be accomplished depends upon the willingness of industry.

Claiming extreme profits may lead the nation into inflation and disastrous unemployment, Murray said the big three looked forward with hope and belief that industry will rise to its responsibilities and meet the needs of the nation by necessary wage adjustments.

During the meeting Murray, Reuther and Fitzgerald said they gave consideration to various economic aspects of the overall industry profits and wage picture—contract demands and industry's ability to pay.

Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Some 60 veterans, members of the two veterans' training centers being conducted at the Fox high school this winter by Hillis Hall and Bernard Ball, instructors, met in two sessions at the school last week when Soil Conservationist J. A. Muster gave two lectures on some basic soil management subjects.

Soil texture, structure, the forms of soil moisture and the essential chemical elements of the soil for plant growth were explained, as were the different drainage characteristics as they are revealed by sampling with a soil auger. The instructors will follow up the basic discussions with work on fertilizer practices and soil building rotations so that the members of the classes may make the best possible use of modern information while building their farm plans for a permanent and profitable farm business.

Weather permitting, a tour to the Kenneth Dean farm in Madison township was scheduled for December 17 when a soils specialist is to give field demonstrations and instruction. A discussion of Mr. Dean's soil improvement plan will be included in the tour.

At the close of the school meetings, special invitation was extended by the Pickaway Soil Conservation District to the Veterans to take advantage of the services of the district.

The following applications for soil improvement plans were received in the district office in Circleville the past week: Winfred Bidwell, Jackson township, 125 acres; Robert Vincent, Darby township, 118 acres; Francis Furniss, Monroe township, 187 acres and Vernon O. Burke, Madison township, 107 acres. These applications are from veterans of World War II.

TEEN-AGE MOB WITHOUT FAGIN IS BROKEN UP

DENVER, Dec. 17—A Denver "teen-age crime ring of 20 members—operating apparently without the services of a "Fagin" as a master-mind—was smashed today.

Denver police rounded up the 20 teen-agers—including four 14-year-old girls—on a tip-off by the mother of one of the girls that her daughter had been missing for several days. When she was found, the story of the activities of the 20 became known.

Police investigation indicated that the gang committed more than 200 robberies, car-thefts and purse-snatchings and has taken more than $5,000 worth of loot since it began operations in August.

Patrolman Phil Thompson of the juvenile bureau said the gang divided Denver up into districts. Members of the ring operated only in the districts assigned them.

The gang operated with a "fence," who disposed of the stolen goods. But police said there apparently was no "Fagin," or master-mind, directing the thievery. Eighteen of the 20 range from 12 to 16 years of age.

CIO COMMITTEES ARE PLANNING WAGE DEMANDS

Representatives Of USW, UEW Meet To Draft New Schedule

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 17—Over-all demands to be made on two of the nation's largest industries will be formulated today when the executive committees of the CIO United Steelworkers and the United Electrical Workers go into secret sessions in Pittsburgh.

CIO President Philip Murray, who also heads the 853,000 steelworkers, declined to disclose "prematurely" what wage demands would be made on the steel and automobile industries.

Murray, who acted as spokesman for the big three—President Walter P. Reuther of the automobile workers and Albert J. Fitzgerald, head of the electrical workers—at a secret session—reiterated they did not intend to set any blanket wage demands and pointed out each union will decide its own individual case.

The CIO president said the committees will study portal-to-portal pay, a guaranteed annual wage, welfare and health plans.

Reuther earlier announced that a 23.5 wage increase demand will be made on the automobile industry. He said it was not an arbitrary figure but arrived at by an independent study of automotive economics.

Labor leaders indicated that the steel workers will make a 25 percent demand on steel as they did earlier this year when they went out for a $2-a-day wage increase.

The electrical workers have not committed themselves, but they are expected to follow the steelworkers' lead.

The big three earlier approved the Nathan report which claims business can absorb a 25 percent wage increase without boosting prices and declared it a guide post to the nation's labor problems.

Murray called for a "peaceful settlement" of the demands, but said whether they can be accomplished depends upon the willingness of industry.

Claiming extreme profits may lead the nation into inflation and disastrous unemployment, Murray said the big three looked forward with hope and belief that industry will rise to its responsibilities and meet the needs of the nation by necessary wage adjustments.

During the meeting Murray, Reuther and Fitzgerald said they gave consideration to various economic aspects of the overall industry profits and wage picture—contract demands and industry's ability to pay.

Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Some 60 veterans, members of the two veterans' training centers being conducted at the Fox high school this Winter by Hillis Hall and Bernard Ball, instructors, met in two sessions at the school last week when Soil Conservationist J. A. Muster gave two lectures on some basic soil management subjects.

Soil texture, structure, the forms of soil moisture and the essential chemical elements of the soil for plant growth were explained, as were the different drainage characteristics as they are revealed by sampling with a soil auger. The instructors will follow up the basic discussions with work on fertilizer practices and soil building rotations so that the members of the classes may make the best possible use of modern information while building their farm plans for a permanent and profitable farm business.

Weather permitting, a tour to the Kenneth Dean farm in Madison township was scheduled for December 17 when a soils specialist is to give field demonstrations and instruction. A discussion of Mr. Dean's soil improvement plan will be included in the tour.

At the close of the school meetings, special invitation was extended by the Pickaway Soil Conservation District to the Veterans to take advantage of the services of the district.

TEEN-AGE MOB WITHOUT FAGIN IS BROKEN UP

DENVER, Dec. 17—A Denver "teen-age crime ring of 20 members—operating apparently without the services of a "Fagin" as a master-mind—was smashed today.

Denver police rounded up the 20 teen-agers—including four 14-year-old girls—on a tip-off by the mother of one of the girls that her daughter had been missing for several days. When she was found, the story of the activities of the 20 became known.

Police investigation indicated that the gang committed more than 200 robberies, car-thefts and purse-snatchings and has taken more than $5,000 worth of loot since it began operations in August.

Patrolman Phil Thompson of the juvenile bureau said the gang divided Denver up into districts. Members of the ring operated only in the districts assigned them.

The gang operated with a "fence," who disposed of the stolen goods. But police said there apparently was no "Fagin," or master-mind, directing the thievery.

Eighteen of the 20 range from 12 to 18 years of age.

GERMAN EDUCATION
WHILE Germany's four occupying governments agree that the education of Reich youth is the main hope of building democracy in that country, teaching methods so divergent as to be conflicting are in vogue in the various zones.
Working hardest are the Russians, employing 47,000 carefully indoctrinated teachers, using textbooks printed in Russia which slant history, literature and political science toward the Soviet point of view. Able students are given special opportunities, though it is said those chosen for university training must be of acceptable political faith. The French, believing that 50 years will be needed to stamp out Nazism, use an iron-clad superimposed system and rely on text books attractively printed and more numerous than in other zones.
Radically different from either of these teaching methods is that in the British and American zones. In these, effort is made to encourage the Germans to write their own textbooks, do their own instruction, revised from Hitler days. This plan, calculated to create real democracy among the Germans themselves, is nevertheless handicapped by a teacher shortage. As many as 90 children are under one instructor, obviously making thoroughness impossible.
The result will be that Germans reaching maturity will have widely varied educational backgrounds and cultural ideologies. It is a tragic, stupid situation. Unity is necessary among the four allies before they can hope for a united, democratic Germany.

AERIAL ENTERPRISE
OUR people have mastered mountains, forests and seas, and are now looking for new worlds to conquer. Many seem to agree that we shall find a new conquest in the air. This suggestion obviously goes back to Jules Verne, who by the power of his own imagination made so many strange new ideas seem true, or on the edge of fulfillment. According to Richard T. F. Harding, an Ohio newspaper man, the world is half peopled with Jules Vernes. This view may flatter us unduly, but there's something in it.
If the moon is only about 200,000 miles above the earth, it seems as if some of our more enterprising and imaginative citizens would take up the Jules Verne idea of a trip to it, with modern improvements, and proceed to do something about it. Not that our moon isn't just about all right as it is—but we're inquisitive enough to wonder what's on the other side of it, and to try to find some way to get there. Maybe our children or grandchildren will tackle it. Finding out how to get back is an important prerequisite.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—My radio dined it into me—and at least one newspaper said at the top of its front page—that Phil Murray had "accepted" the Nathan survey which held that American business can pay another 25 per cent wage increase without raising prices or reducing its pre-war profit margin. The CBS 11 p. m. broadcaster that day said no one had disputed Mr. Nathan's figures. He and others treated the news as something of a super-colossal sensation tossed like a bomb in the CIO campaign for more wage increases—you know how they go on.
The truth of the matter (which no one whom I read or heard pointed out) was that Nathan had been hired by Murray to make the survey. Bob Nathan, who operates a private statistical agency, made no secret of it in his invitation to newsmen to attend the announcement, saying: "we have been retained by CIO to undertake . . ." the survey and have been working on it two months.
Now anyone above the age of ten (and some under) knows Murray hired Nathan for a job of statistical propaganda to boom the CIO increase-wages-again campaign. That Murray "accepted" what he had bought was no more surprising than if a CIO attorney had said CIO was just wonderful, but the way the radio handled it, and some newspapers, would have made me believe—if I had not known the facts—that an objective third party had just given CIO the go-ahead to get another 25 per cent wage increase—which is what CIO wanted.
Such propaganda statisticking goes on all the time and is legal, if the public is not misled as to its true source, but the tricky deception this time is likely to involve the union and the country in an economic holocaust, to wit:
Now any high school student, including the worst in the class of economics, can see on the surface the two major things wrong with the statistics of economist Nathan which utterly destroy their assigned value. In the first place he professes to calculate the prospective profits of all industry for the purpose of promoting a wage increase for the CIO in autos and steel—whereas only autos and steel are pertinent. Nathan takes in profits of every business, good and bad, to promote a wage increase in the two basic largest national industries which are admittedly bad.
But this is not nearly the worst of his economic offense against common sense. He says the wage increase again this year can be accomplished without "reducing pre-war profits." Certainly the thickest head in high school realizes we have gone far upwards in inflation since pre-war, that the dollar buys perhaps half as much as it did then. If industry is held to pre-war dollar figures of profits, its profits will be reduced by half or more—reduced by a much as inflation has gone up. Only management then would be denied an inflation which labor itself is promoting, and therefore management must be utterly destroyed by the economic events which Nathan advocates. Management cannot live on pre-war dollars in an inflated economy. That is the insidious danger of the Nathan figures to the union which apparently does not realize it—and to the public.

DIET AND HEALTH
Use of Diathermy Treatment
By HERMAN N. BUNDESE, M.D.
MODERN engineering has given medical science many of its best weapons against pain and disease. One of these is the diathermy machine which generates a current capable of passing through the body and producing heat in its deeper tissues without burning the skin.
In previous articles I have often spoken of the benefits of diathermy. In bringing heat to otherwise inaccessible parts, diathermy assists Nature's own restorative processes by speeding up the flow of blood to the tissues and thus making possible the swifter carrying away of wastes and the bringing in of new materials for repair.
Use of Diathermy
Dr. Connell G. Garrenton of North Carolina has outlined the various conditions in which diathermy may be found useful. In the treatment of sprains, he says that it is advisable to use cold applications at first. This will help to stop any bleeding that may be present deep in the tissues. After the first day, however, there is a collection of fluid in the tissues, together with some swelling, and these symptoms may be helped by the application of the diathermy. The heat produced causes the blood vessels to dilate, increasing the flow of blood and promoting healing. The heat also gives relief from pain. The treatments, as a rule, are given daily for 20 minutes until the symptoms clear up.
Diathermy Helps Bursitis
Bursitis is another condition which is helped with diathermy. The bursae are sacs containing fluid, which are located around the various joints. There is one under the large muscle over the shoulder. This is known as the subdeltoid bursa. Dr. Garrenton believes that treatment with diathermy should be used in all cases of subdeltoid bursitis before any surgical measures are employed. Even deposits of calcium or lime salts may disappear with the diathermy treatment.
Inflammation of the lining membranes around the tendons which connect the muscles with bones is known as tenosynovitis. This condition may arise from infections and injuries. Daily diathermy treatments of 20 minutes will often give surprisingly good results in this troublesome disorder.
Value of Diathermy
The value of diathermy in the treatment of chronic arthritis or inflammation of the joints, as well as fibrositis, which is inflammation of the connecting tissues in and around the joints, is well known, according to Dr. Dierneil Kobak of Chicago. Diathermy, however, has other uses, such as the relief of pain produced by pleurisy, which is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the chest. It is also used in the treatment of inflammations of the nerves, infections of the sinuses, and backache.
It is not to be expected that diathermy treatments will give results in a day or two. It should be borne in mind that they act by speeding up the flow of blood to the tissues which aids in carrying away wastes and bringing materials for repair. The treatments are easily carried out, are in no way dangerous, and are one of the doctor's best weapons against many inflammations.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
ANNE DID not mind getting dinner; but Mary was cross. Anne knew that she counted on having Philip on Sunday, or at least on digging in the garden with Mr. Lane. There was none of the usual cheerful atmosphere of Sunday at home, with everyone drifting about, friendly and entertaining. Anne tried to find something for Mary to do, but her best efforts were unavailing. Her usually fertile imagination seemed to have deserted her.
Mrs. Lane had started to peel the potatoes, and Anne, worrying every minute for fear Mary might cut herself, let her help finish them. She finally gave her some flour and water to make a cake for her doll, but even that failed to hold her very long.
Anne was beginning to long for Philip to come home and take Mary off her hands when she heard a step in the hall. In a minute the kitchen door opened and Roddy walked in.
"What's become of everybody? Drowned?"
Anne, after that one surprised look, kept her eyes on the chicken she had just taken out of the refrigerator. "Practically," she said. "Mrs. Lane is in bed with a headache. Mr. Lane and Mr. Grey are both gone for the day." That ought to be a relief, she thought. "Philip is out on a call, and Jean's still in bed. . . . Oh, Mary, be careful!"
Mary was trying earnestly to take the top off a can of peas with a trick can opener. Roddy looked at her and grinned. "Lay off that, youngster, and come with me," he said abruptly. "I've something to show you."
Mary abandoned the peas and followed him willingly. Anne sighed with relief, but Roddy was not through. He was back in a few minutes, and after tying Mrs. Lane's big apron around his waist, he watched Anne's cautious maneuvering with the chicken.
"Haven't you got that out yet?" he demanded. "Here, give it to me."
"I'm afraid of breaking the gall," she said, handing him the knife.
"You don't go about it right. Watch me."
"Where did you learn so much about it?"
"Me? Oh, I know everything. I've got to roast this!"
Anne set the table while Roddy made the dressing. She was washing up the dishes when Jean came in.
Jean's "Hello," was natural enough. "Where is everybody?"
Anne started to explain, but Roddy cut her short. "Anne must be tired of going over it. I'll tell you." He enumerated everyone's whereabouts, and Jean smiled, and suddenly the tension was lessened.
"Is there any coffee?" Jean asked. "I want some if it is almost dinner time."
Anne told her it was on the sideboard, and when she had gone to attach the cord and had gone to heat again, Anne stole a glance at Roddy. His head was held at a defiant angle as he beat away at the potatoes. For a moment she was nearly as sorry for him as she was for Jean. Why had Jean had the misfortune to fall in love with Roddy Malone?
They were just sitting down to dinner when Philip came in. Roddy hailed him flippantly. "You're a big help, Doc. Do you disappear every time anybody gets sick?"
Philip paused with his hand on the back of his chair, and looked inquiringly at Anne.
"Sit down," Anne said. "Mrs. Lane has another headache, but she said she had medicine for it, and she was asleep when I looked in on her."
Philip sat down with a shake of his head, and Roddy began carving the chicken.
"Who got this dinner, anyway?" Philip asked when he had sampled everything.
"Roddy did," said Anne. "I was the scullery maid—and can he dirty up utensils!"
"Umm. You're a very talented man, Roddy."
"Talented? Genius is the word." There was a short silence; then Anne spoke to Jean. "How did you get along with your permanent last night, Jean?"
"Oh, fine. I sold her five dollars worth of the new vitamin creams, too."
"I can hear your sales talk," Philip teased. "Now this cream, Madam, is to lubricate the epidermis; and this one is to nourish the tissue and supply vitamins—in case you've been living in a cave and haven't had access to sunlight."
"That'll be enough from you, Doctor. I suppose you'd tell me soap and water are all they need."
Anne was looking at him questioningly. "I take it that you don't think much of our creams."
"Well, you know the blood is the only thing that can nourish the skin."
"You wouldn't kid me, would you?"
It was strange for conversation to be forced at this table, Philip thought. Roddy put another piece of chicken on his plate, and Mary asked for the other drumstick. Roddy gave it to her. "Anybody want the neck? No? Then we'll save it for Lane or Grey, whichever comes in first."
"You needn't be so generous," said Anne. "Neither of them will be here."
"What were you doing out so early this morning, Philip?" Jean helped them to be at ease when they dine out when they are grown men.
Today's Horoscope
You are a quiet, reserved, imaginative, sometimes impractical person if your birthday is on this date. You are subject to moods, and to be happy, you require a deep and constant love. You are generally bright and happy, and usually manage to get a reasonable amount of comfort. You have few intimate friends. There are only eight days left until Christmas, so if you have not yet made your plans, now is a good time to do so. Alterations in your home, or even moving, may now be considered with planetary sanction. Getting embroiled over the expression of criticism you feel like making will not be wise. There is something you have always wanted to do, so this evening attempt to do it, if it does not inconvenience others.

With slight variations, including a diamond rebid by West or a club call by East, the bidding landed three pairs of a duplicate game in that same contract. In every case North opened the spade J to the K, and West saw at once that he must set up something in diamonds to get nine tricks. So the second lead in each case was a diamond, which South took with the K. Then came differences.
One South player continued work on spades, leading the Q on which West held up, and then the 5 to the A. West then knocked out the diamond A. South now returned a club, but when the A won West had no trouble to run.
Another South player continued with the spade J, and then the 5 to the A. West then knocked out the diamond A. South now returned a club, but when the A won West had no trouble to run.

GERMAN EDUCATION
WHILE Germany's four occupying governments agree that the education of Reich youth is the main hope of building democracy in that country, teaching methods so divergent as to be conflicting are in vogue in the various zones.
Working hardest are the Russians, employing 47,000 carefully indoctrinated teachers, using textbooks printed in Russia which slant history, literature and political science toward the Soviet point of view. Able students are given special opportunities, though it is said those chosen for university training must be of acceptable political faith. The French, believing that 50 years will be needed to stamp out Nazism, use an iron-clad superimposed system and rely on text books attractively printed and more numerous than in other zones.
Radically different from either of these teaching methods is that in the British and American zones. In these, effort is made to encourage the Germans to write their own textbooks, do their own instruction, revised from Hitler days. This plan, calculated to create real democracy among the Germans themselves, is nevertheless handicapped by a teacher shortage. As many as 90 children are under one instructor, obviously making thoroughness impossible.
The result will be that Germans reaching maturity will have widely varied educational backgrounds and cultural ideologies. It is a tragic, stupid situation. Unity is necessary among the four allies before they can hope for a united, democratic Germany.

AERIAL ENTERPRISE
OUR people have mastered mountains, forests and seas, and are now looking for new worlds to conquer. Many seem to agree that we shall find a new conquest in the air. This suggestion obviously goes back to Jules Verne, who by the power of his own imagination made so many strange new ideas seem true, or on the edge of fulfillment. According to Richard T. F. Harding, an Ohio newspaper man, the world is half peopled with Jules Vernes. This view may flatter us unduly, but there's something in it.
If the moon is only about 200,000 miles above the earth, it seems as if some of our more enterprising and imaginative citizens would take up the Jules Verne idea of a trip to it, with modern improvements, and proceed to do something about it. Not that our moon isn't just about as right as it is—but we're inquisitive enough to wonder what's on the other side of it, and to try to find some way to get there. Maybe our children or grandchildren will tackle it. Finding out how to get back is an important prerequisite.

Up and about the village on a real winterish morning and feeling more than a hint of more snow. Here and there traces of the last light fall that made the paved highways dangerous Sunday morning. One must get more than a touch of winter hereabouts in order to appreciate the other seasons." That is pretty much my sentiment, too.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—My radio dined it into me—and at least one newspaper said at the top of its front page—that Phil Murray had "accepted" the Nathan survey which held that American business can pay another 25 per cent wage increase without raising prices or reducing its pre-war profit margin. The CBS 11 p. m. broadcaster that day said no one had disputed Mr. Nathan's figures. He and others treated the news as something of a super-colossal sensation tossed like a bomb in the CIO campaign for more wage increases—you know how they go on.
The truth of the matter (which no one whom I read or heard pointed out) was that Nathan had been hired by Murray to make the survey. Bob Nathan, who operates a private statistical agency, made no secret of it in his invitation to newsmen to attend the announcement, saying: "we have been retained by CIO to undertake..." the survey and have been working on it two months.
Now anyone above the age of ten (and some under) knows Murray hired Nathan for a job of statistical propaganda to boom the CIO increase-wages-again campaign. That Murray "accepted" what he had bought was no more surprising than if a CIO attorney had said CIO was just wonderful, but the way the radio handled it, and some newspapers, would have made me believe—if I had not known the facts—that an objective third party had just given CIO the go-ahead to get another 25 per cent wage increase—which is what CIO wanted.
Such propaganda statisticking goes on all the time and is legal, if the public is not misled as to its true source, but the tricky deception this time is likely to involve the union and the country in an economic holocaust, to wit:
Now any high school student, including the worst in the class of economics, can see on the surface the two major things wrong with the statistics of economist Nathan which utterly destroy their assigned value. In the first place he professes to calculate the prospective profits of all industry for the purpose of promoting a wage increase for the CIO in autos and steel—whereas only autos and steel are pertinent. Nathan takes in profits of every business, good and bad, to promote a wage increase in the two basic largest national industries which are admittedly bad.
But this is not nearly the worst of his economic offense against common sense. He says the wage increase again this year can be accomplished without "reducing pre-war profits." Certainly the thickest head in high school realizes we have gone far upwards in inflation since pre-war, that the dollar buys perhaps half as much as it did then. If industry is held to pre-war dollar figures of profits, its profits will be reduced by half or more—reduced by a much as inflation has gone up. Only management then would be denied an inflation which labor itself is promoting, and therefore management must be utterly destroyed by the economic events which Nathan advocates. Management cannot live on pre-war dollars in an inflated economy. That is the insidious danger of the Nathan figures to the union which apparently does not realize it—and to the public.

Use of Diathermy Treatment
By HERMAN N. BUNDESEK, M.D.
MODERN engineering has given medical science many of its best weapons against pain and disease. One of these is the diathermy machine which generates a current capable of passing through the body and producing heat in its deeper tissues without burning the skin.
In previous articles I have often spoken of the benefits of diathermy. In bringing heat to otherwise inaccessible parts, diathermy assists Nature's own restorative processes by speeding up the flow of blood to the tissues and thus making possible the swifter carrying away of wastes and the bringing of new materials for repair.
Use of Diathermy
Dr. Connell G. Garrenton of North Carolina has outlined the various conditions in which diathermy may be found useful. In the treatment of sprains, he says that it is advisable to use cold applications at first. This will help to stop any bleeding that may be present deep in the tissues. After the first day, however, there is a collection of fluid in the tissues, together with some swelling, and these symptoms may be helped by the application of the diathermy. The heat produced causes the blood vessels to dilate, increasing the flow of blood and promoting healing. The heat also gives relief from pain. The treatments, as a rule, are given daily for 20 minutes until the symptoms clear up.
Diathermy Helps Bursitis
Bursitis is another condition which is helped with diathermy. The bursae are sacs containing fluid, which are located around the various joints. There is one under

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
ANNE DID not mind getting dinner; but Mary was cross. Anne knew that she counted on having Philip on Sunday, or at least on digging in the garden with Mr. Lane. There was none of the usual cheerful atmosphere of Sunday at home, with everyone drifting about, friendly and entertaining. Anne tried to cheer up her sister Mary to do, but her best efforts were unavailing. Her usually fertile imagination seemed to have deserted her.
Mrs. Lane had started to peel the potatoes, and Anne, worrying every minute for fear Mary might cut herself, let her help finish them. She finally gave her some sour and water to make a cake for her doll, but even that failed to hold her very long.
Anne was beginning to long for Philip to come home and take Mary off her hands when she heard a step in the hall. In a minute the kitchen door opened and Roddy walked in.
"What's become of everybody?"
Anne, after that one surprised look, kept her eyes on the chicken she had just taken out of the refrigerator. "Practically," she said. "Mrs. Lane is in bed with a headache. Mr. Lane and Mr. Grey are both gone for the day." That ought to be a relief, she thought. "Philip is out on a call, and Jean's still in bed... Oh, Mary, be careful!"
Mary was trying earnestly to take the top off a can of peas with a trick can opener. Roddy looked at her and grinned. "Lay off that, youngster, and come with me," he said abruptly. "I've something to show you."
Mary abandoned the peas and followed him willingly. Anne sighed with relief, but Roddy was not through. He was back in a few minutes, and after tying Mrs. Lane's big apron around his waist, he watched Anne's cautious maneuvering with the chicken.
"Haven't you got that out yet?" he demanded. "Here, give it to me."
"I'm afraid of breaking the gall," she said, handing him the knife.
"You don't go about it right. Watch me."
"Where did you learn so much about it?"
"Me? Oh, I know everything. You want to roast this?"
Anne set the table while Roddy made the dressing. She was washing up the dishes when Jean came in.
Jean's "Hello" was natural enough. "Where is everybody?"
Anne started to explain, but Roddy cut her short. "Anne must be tired of going to bed. I'll tell you." He enumerated everyone's whereabouts, and Jean smiled, and suddenly the tension was lessened.
"Is there any coffee?" Jean asked. "I want some if it is almost dinner time."
Anne told her it was on the sideboard, and when she had gone to attach the cord and wait for it to heat again, Anne stole a glance at Roddy. His head was held at a dejected angle as he beat away at the potatoes. For a moment she was nearly as sorry for him as she was for Jean. Why had Jean had the misfortune to fall in love with Roddy Malone?
They were just sitting down to dinner when Philip came in. Roddy hailed him flippantly. "You're a big help, Doc. Do you disappear every time anybody gets sick?"
Philip paused with his hand on the back of his chair, and looked inquiringly at Anne.
"Sit down," Anne said. "Mrs. Lane has another headache, but she said she had medicine for it, and she was asleep when I looked in on her."
Philip sat down with a shake of his head, and Roddy began carving the chicken.
"Who got this dinner, anyway?" Philip asked when he had sampled everything.
"Roddy did," said Anne. "I was the scullery maid—and can be dirty up utensils!"
"Umm. You're a very talented man, Roddy."
"Talented? Genius is the word." There was a short silence; then Anne spoke to Jean. "How did you get along with your permanent last night, Jean?"
"Oh, fine. I sold her five dollars worth of the new vitamin creams, too."
"I can hear your sales talk," Philip teased. "Now this cream, Madam, is to lubricate the epidermis; and this one is to nourish the tissue and supply vitamins—in case you've been living in a cave and haven't had access to sunlight."
"That'll be enough from you, Doctor. I suppose you'd tell 'em soap and water are all they need."
Anne was looking at him questioningly. "I take it that you don't think much of our creams?"
"Well, you know the blood is the only thing that can nourish the skin."
"You wouldn't kid me, would you?"
It was strange for conversation to be forced at this table. Philip thought, Roddy put another piece of chicken on his plate, and Mary asked for the other drumstick. Roddy gave it to her. "Anybody want the neck? No? Then we'll save it for Lane or Grey, whichever comes in first."
"You needn't be so generous," said Anne. "Neither of them will be here."
"What were you doing out so early this morning, Philip?" Jean

The second South player, when in with the diamond K, viewed the club A as a dangerous re-entry to the dummy to bring in hearts, so shot at it with the club 3. The K drove out the A. Now West eliminated South's diamond A, whereupon the club J won the defense's fourth trick. But that was all, for the club 9 was set up, also all red cards.
The third South saw the danger of the club being blocked if North held what he did. So, after winning with the diamond K, he first scored his spade Q, being sure West would hold up once, and then shifted to the club 3. By thus stealing a spade trick, his side got a total of five, with two each in the minors. It turned out that knocking the club A out of its re-entry function was unimportant, but the combining of the two plans put the blocks to West anyway.

Christmas Legends Is Topic for Monday Club

Mrs. Reichelderfer Is Speaker At Meeting

Members of the Monday club gathered in the candle-lighted trustees room at Memorial Hall for their regular meeting Monday night. Stately candelabra flanked by an abundant background of Christmas greenery, formed the setting for a display of Madonna and Bambino pictures with the fragrance of pine cones and cedar, lending the yuletide atmosphere.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. T. L. Huston, president, gifts were received for the Boy's Industrial school at Lancaster. Mrs. Huston then turned the meeting over to the chairman for the evening, who presented Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, as narrator of "Christmas Legends and Stories".

In opening talk, Mrs. Reichelderfer said:

"Christmas as we know it has undergone many changes as it has come down to us through the centuries, but it is still the most popular festival in the world.

"Christmas is today's name for the Yule of the Northern Europeans, the Noel of the French, the Noche-Buena of the Spanish, the Weihnachten of the Germans and the name given by the Roman Catholic Church to the Christ Mass, the Feast in honor of the Nativity of Jesus. Its roots, however lie deep in the folklore of the Druids, Scandinavians, Romans and Egyptians.

Since earliest times, the peoples have held festivals at this period when the sun returns to the heavens after its long winter rest, and the days begin to lengthen."

She then told of the ancient celebrations of many countries at this time of year, all gala affairs; but with the birth of the Christ Child, she said, "Christmas assumed a purely spiritual character with none of the color and gaiety which it now possesses and Christmas Eve was the most hallowed night in the church year.

"Once the Christian Christmas was established in Rome, it was accepted in both East and West but not in Jerusalem until after the sixth century. It was taken to the British Isles by the Celtic church about 592 and to Germany in 813, but the Scandinavian countries did not celebrate the Christian Christmas until the tenth century.

"A great deal of the charm of Christmas lies in the fact that it is celebrated in the season of frost and snow, and to our early ancestors the Christmas fire played the part of supreme importance. It was the heart of the season, the symbol of all the warm thoughts and emotions appropriate to the time. Even today Christmas is a time of family gatherings around the fire-side.

"In England the bringing in of the Yule log was a joyous occasion and for a long time the wood fire was the only form of illumination in the home. Candles came much later and were used by the monks who notched and colored them to determine the passage of time. Candles were used in the church as symbols of enlightenment. The practice of burning candles in windows on Christmas eve is an old Irish custom, with the thought of the Christ Child alone in the dark and cold needing to be lighted on his way, and in Ireland no-one may snuff the Church candles except she whose name is Mary.

"In Scotland it was believed that a child born on Christmas would have the power to see spirits and to command them. The French peasants believe that a baby born on Christmas will have the gift of prophecy. In Silesia one born on this day will become either a lawyer or a thief. English mothers used to take sick babies to the door at midnight on Christmas eve. Mary was expected to pass with the infant, and if the sick baby recovered it was a sign it had been touched by the Christ healing fingers — if it died the Christ Child had called it to be his play-mate in Heaven.

"The bringing of evergreens into the home has its roots in the profound reverence of the early peoples for all growing things. To their simple minds nature was everywhere alive, every fountain had its spirit, every mountain its God and garlands were brought into the home, not merely for their decorative qualities, but rather to bring a blessing into the home and of course they brought the friendly spirit as they do now. Christmas would not be Christmas without them. Our ancestors realized this for they called the bringing in of the greens from the woods "Bringing Home Christmas."

"Many believed 'holly' to be a form of the word Holy and the crown of thorns was thought to be made of holly and before crucifixion the berries were white but turned red like drops of blood. Holly was also believed to be hated by witches and was placed on doors and windows to keep out evil spirits.

"There was a legend that the fir tree was the tree of life, but that Eve plucked its fruits causing the foliage to shrink, becoming like tiny needles. However, on the night before the Christ child was born every fir tree in the forest began to bloom again. And there was the story of the old Pine Tree, - - -

"Joseph and Mary and the child fleeing into Egypt from King Herod came to a forest. Mary was weary to proceed and a huge hollow pine bade them rest inside its trunk and lowered its branches to conceal the Holy Family until the soldiers of Herod had passed by. When morning came the Child raised his arms and blessed the Pine. It is said that if you cut a pine cone length wise you may still see the imprint of His hand.

"The origin of the Christmas Tree as we know it is ascribed to Martin Luther who set up a tree lighted with candles to represent the gracious heavens that had sent the little Lord Jesus on the first Weihnacht."

Continuing, Mrs. Reichelderfer said,

"Since early times there has always been a desire to share the best things in life with friends and with others less fortunate. The custom of the early Romans of giving gifts during their winter festival spread to England and since the reign of Henry, the Seventh, the giving of Christmas boxes was exacted by royal decree. There was a graduated scale for giving and receiving according to rank. It is said that Queen Elizabeth relied on Christmas gifts to replenish her wardrobe. The loyal, even if unwilling subjects presented her with rich furs, jewels and petticoats and one of the court ladies gave her the first pair of silk stockings to be made in Europe.

"In Catholic countries Christmas day is observed in a more solemn way and gifts are exchanged at another time of year. In the 16th century gifts were tied in bundles something pleasant, something useful and something for discipline. "And so Christmas as we know and love it today with its lighted trees, its sparkle and firelight, its spirit of giving and receiving is a happy combination of early pagan customs and religious observance, and perhaps those who enjoy it most are the ones who find their happiness, both in the color and mysticism handed down by our forebears and the spirit of the manger."

At the conclusion of her paper, Mrs. Reichelderfer announced the following program of Christmas music.

Miss Eleanor Snyder sang, "Ave Maria," by Rosewig, and "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro A. Yon. The Monday club chorus sang, "Today There is Ringing," by Christiansen, and "Carol of the Birds," (a French Christmas carol).

Mrs. Arthur Wagner sang, "Mary's Slumber Song," by Bernard Hamblen, and "Ave Maria" by Bach-Gounod. The Monday club chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, closed the program with "Oh Holy Night," by Adolphe Adam. The piano accompaniments for the entire program were played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

REV. TROUTMAN IS CHILD STUDY CLUB SPEAKER

The Rev. George L. Troutman was guest speaker for the Child Study club Monday evening when members gathered at the home of Mrs. W. J. Herbert, North Pickaway street, in celebration of the third anniversary of the club. Mrs. Joseph Rooney served as assistant hostess for the occasion.

Mrs. Charles Walters presented the Rev. Mr. Troutman who used as the subject of his talk, "Spiritual Training and Development of Children". He said, "Parents look upon their office at too low a place for they are placed next to God in the Commandments and rank second to Him as chief architects of the destiny of future generations. Children are a joint possession of God's and ours. God gives the instructions and it remains our duty as parents to carry them out."

The first duty of parents is to accept and own their children no matter what physical or mental conditions they may be in. Our second duty is an interest in providing them the best possible environment with regards to housing, clothing and food. The third and most important Rev. Troutman said was, "The training of children's minds. Parents should help children grow to their fullest potentiality not only by saying but by doing."

Religious training in the average home is turned over to the church or church school, which is sadly inadequate. Religion should be taught and lived to the fullest for children to absorb it to their best advantage. He concluded, with "Parental rewards are not sought but still are meted out according to the job well done. There may be heart aches, but with them come the satisfaction and pride of a job well done."

Group discussion followed the talk. A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, president. Members voted to send a donation to the Tuberculosis association. Mrs. John Heiskell, chairman of the Philanthropic committee, announced plans to purchase gifts for members of the County Home.

Arrangements were discussed for a children's Christmas party to be held in the home of Mrs. Richard Morris, on December 20. Mrs. H. Davis was appointed to serve as a member of the Brownie troop committee. Refreshments were served and a Christmas gift exchange brought the meeting to a close.

Annual Christmas Party Of Saltcreek Valley Grange Held

Members of the Saltcreek Valley grange held their Christmas party in the school auditorium Monday evening. Candles and Christmas decorations were used throughout by Mrs. Randolph Wolf, lecturer, who also conducted the meeting. Judson Beougher, master, appointed Miss Gift Macklin, O. S. Mowery and Burley Pierce as members of the auditing committee.

Christmas greetings were read by Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham. Mrs. Dwight Rector extended appreciation for the 75 bowls donated for use in the cafeteria. Members voted to subscribe to the National Grange monthly magazine for all members. Ten dollars will be sent to Veterans hospital, Chillicothe.

Group singing, "Joy to the World," opened the program and Mrs. Wolf read, "Christmas Customs and Where They Originated." A recitation, "Christmas Mouse," was given by Neal Wolf. Miss Macklin and Mrs. Frank Shride offered "Sleigh Ride," as a piano duet. "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" concluded the meeting. White elephant gifts were used as prizes during the games and refreshments were served during the evening.

Installation of officers will take place at the January meeting.

Ater and Miss Ruth Ater, Christmas decorations were used throughout the home.

Attending the dinner were: Mrs. Russell McDill, Frankfort; Mrs. Fred Tipton, Mrs. H. W. Campbell, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Edna Newhouse, Mrs. George Hammon, Mrs. I. Smith Hulse, and Mrs. J. S. Varney, Williamsport.

Christmas Legends Is Topic for Monday Club

Mrs. Reichelderfer Is Speaker At Meeting

Members of the Monday club gathered in the candle-lighted trustees room at Memorial Hall for their regular meeting Monday night. Stately candelabra flanked by an abundant background of Christmas greenery, formed the setting for a display of Madonna and Bambino pictures with the fragrance of pine cones and cedar, lending the yuletide atmosphere.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. T. L. Huston, president, gifts were received for the Boy's Industrial school at Lancaster. Mrs. Huston then turned the meeting over to the chairman for the evening, who presented Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, as narrator of "Christmas Legends and Stories".

In opening her talk, Mrs. Reichelderfer said:

"Christmas as we know it has undergone many changes as it has come down to us through the centuries, but it is still the most popular festival in the world."

"Christmas is today's name for the Yule of the Northern Europeans, the Noel of the French, the Noche-Buena of the Spanish, the Weihnachtsen of the Germans and the name given by the Roman Catholic Church to the Christ Mass, the Feast in honor of the Nativity of Jesus. Its roots, however lie deep in the folklore of the Druids, Scandinavians, Romans and Egyptians."

Since earliest times, the peoples have held festivals at this period when the sun returns to the heavens after its long winter rest, and the days begin to lengthen."

She then told of the ancient celebrations of many countries at this time of year, all gala affairs, but with the birth of the Christ Child, she said, "Christmas assumed a purely spiritual character with none of the color and gaiety which it now possesses and Christmas Eve was the most hallowed night in the church year."

"Once the Christian Christmas was established in Rome, it was accepted in both East and West but not in Jerusalem until after the sixth century. It was taken to the British Isles by the Celtic church about 592 and to Germany in 813, but the Scandinavian countries did not celebrate the Christian Christmas until the tenth century."

"A great deal of the charm of Christmas lies in the fact that it is celebrated in the season of frost and snow, and to our early ancestors the Christmas fire played the part of supreme importance. It was the heart of the season, the symbol of all the warm thoughts and emotions appropriate to the time. Even today Christmas is a time of family gatherings around the fire-side."

"In England the bringing in of the Yule log was a joyous occasion and for a long time the wood fire was the only form of illumination in the home. Candles came much later and were used by the monks who notched and colored them to determine the passage of time. Candles were used in the church as symbols of enlightenment. The practice of burning candles in windows on Christmas eve is an old Irish custom, with the thought of the Christ Child alone in the dark and cold needing to be lighted on his way, and in Ireland no-one may snuff the church candles except she whose name is Mary."

"In Scotland it was believed that a child born on Christmas would have the power to see spirits and to command them. The French peasants believe that a baby born on Christmas will have the gift of prophecy. In Silesia one born on this day will become either a lawyer or a thief. English mothers used to take sick babies to the door at midnight on Christmas eve. Mary was expected to pass with the infant, and if the sick baby recovered it was a sign it had been touched by the Christ healing fingers — if it died the Christ Child had called it to be his play-mate in Heaven."

"The bringing of evergreens into the home has its roots in the profound reverence of the early peoples for all growing things. To their simple minds nature was everywhere alive, every fountain had its spirit, every mountain its God and garlands were brought into the home, not merely for their decorative qualities, but rather to bring a blessing into the home and of course they brought the friendly spirit as they do now. Christmas would not be Christmas without them. Our ancestors realized this for they called the bringing in of the greens from the woods "Bringing Home Christmas."

"Many believed 'holly' to be a form of the word Holy and the crown of thorns was thought to be made of holly and before crucifixion the berries were white but turned red like drops of blood. Holly was also believed to be hated by witches and was placed on doors and windows to keep out evil spirits."

"There was a legend that the fir tree was the tree of life, but that Eve plucked its fruits causing the foliage to shrink, becoming like tiny needles. However, on the night before the Christ child was born every fir tree in the forest began to bloom again. And there was the story of the old Pine Tree. . . .

"Joseph and Mary and the child fleeing into Egypt from King Herod came to a forest. Mary was too weary to proceed and a huge hollow pine bade them rest inside its trunk and lowered its branches to conceal the Holy Family until the soldiers of Herod had passed by. When morning came the Child raised his arms and blessed the Pine. It is said that if you cut a pine cone length wise you may still see the imprint of His hand."

"The origin of the Christmas Tree as we know it is ascribed to Martin Luther who set up a tree lighted with candles to represent the gracious heavens that had sent the little Lord Jesus on the first Weihnacht."

Continuing, Mrs. Reichelderfer said:

"Since early times there has always been a desire to share the best things in life with friends and with others less fortunate. The custom of the early Romans of giving gifts during their winter festival spread to England and since the reign of Henry, the Seventh, the giving of Christmas boxes was exacted by royalty. There was a graduated scale for giving and receiving according to rank. It is said that Queen Elizabeth relied on Christmas gifts to replenish her wardrobe. The loyal, even if unwilling subjects presented her with rich furs, jewels and petticoats and one of the court ladies gave her the first pair of silk stockings to be made in Europe."

"In Catholic countries Christmas day is observed in a more solemn way and gifts are exchanged at another time of year. In the 16th century gifts were tied in bundles—something pleasant, something useful and something for discipline."

"And so Christmas as we know and love it today with its lighted trees, its sparkle and firelight, its spirit of giving and receiving is a happy combination of early pagan customs and religious observance, and perhaps those who enjoy it most are the ones who find their happiness, both in the color and mysticism handed down by our forebears and the spirit of the manger."

At the conclusion of her paper, Mrs. Reichelderfer announced the following program of Christmas music.

Miss Eleanor Snyder sang, "Ave Maria," by Rosewig, and "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro A. Yon. The Monday club chorus sang, "Today There is Ringing," by Christiansen, and "Carol of the Birds," (a French Christmas carol).

Mrs. Arthur Wagner sang, "Mary's Slumber Song," by Bernard Hamblen, and "Ave Maria" by Bach-Gounod. The Monday club chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, closed the program with "Oh Holy Night," by Adolphe Adam. The piano accompaniments for the entire program were played by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

GERMAN YOUTH TELLS OF LIFE IN REICH RUINS

Boy Of 18 Believes There Always Will Be Wars, Says Leader Needed

What does the average German "man in the street" think about what the future holds for him today? INS sent a reporter around the streets of Berlin to find out. He first interviewed a youth of 18—a former member of a Hitler youth organization whose story is told here today.

By GEORGE W. HERALD
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Dec. 17—In front of the ruins of the sportsplatz where Hitler used to hold his mass meetings Rudolf Birkenkamp, an 18-year-old watchmaker's apprentice, talked about his life in the destroyed Reich capital.

Rudolf, a former member of the Hitler youth, who was taken out of school at 16 to become a soldier, now lives with his father and two sisters in a two-room-apartment in the Tiergarten-district of the British sector. He has an uncle, Dr. Julius Birkenkamp who is a Lutheran minister residing in Worland, Wyoming.

Six-foot-three tall, blond and blue-eyed Rudolf earns 50 marks a month in his apprentice job. He does not have to contribute anything to the household. His father is a house-painter who earns enough to provide for the whole family. His mother died last April at 43 from a heart disease caused by the excitement of the war years.

The Birkenkamps now live strictly on their rations as they don't have the means to buy food on the black market.

For breakfast Rudolf eats two slices of dry bread and drinks a cup of ersatz-coffee. On the first, tenth and twentieth of the month he receives some margarine which lasts for two or three days and makes the breakfast a little more appetizing. He takes the remainder of his daily 500 grams bread ration to the workshop and eats it for lunch.

Rudolf gets his only warm meal in the evening. Most of the time it consists of potatoes, sprouts and some other fresh vegetables. On Sundays, he and his father pool their 65 grams meat rations with the 15 grams a day his two sisters get and sit down to a "real hearty family dinner." None of them has seen any fruits all through the year.

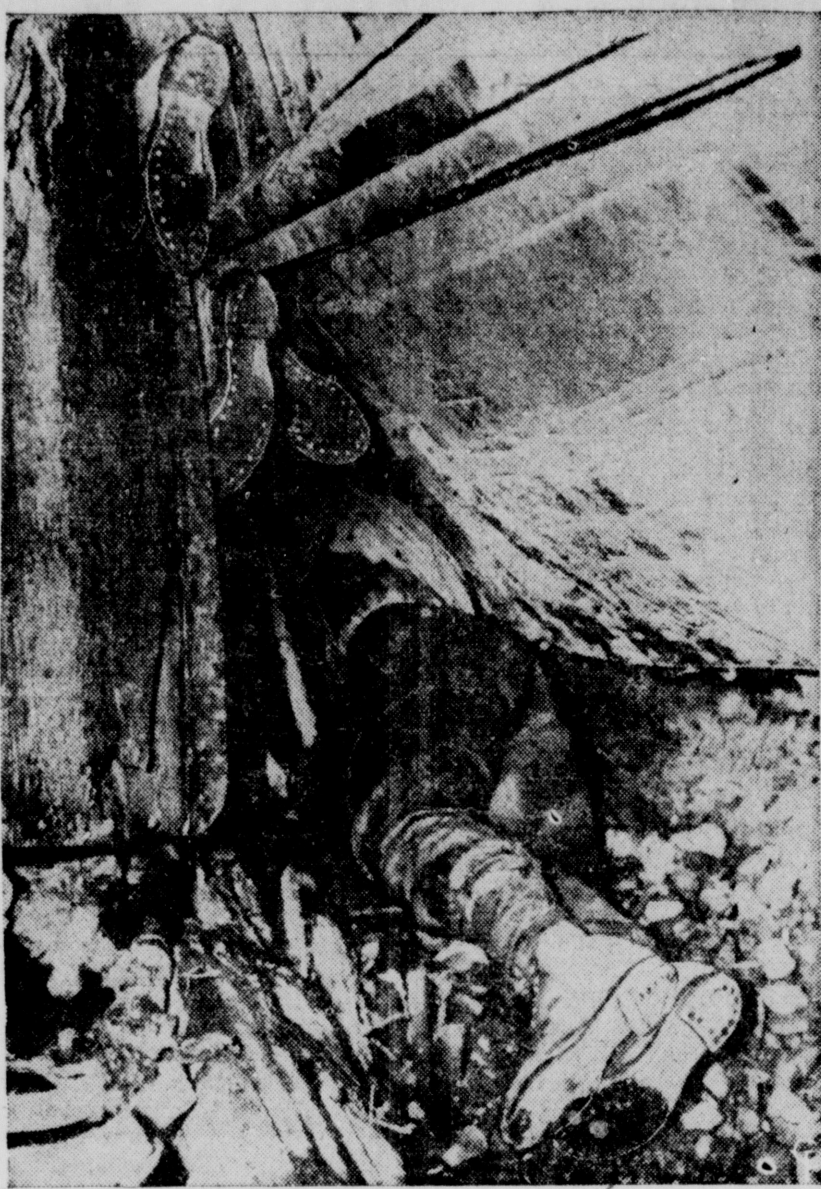

On this diet, Rudolf looked surprisingly healthy and well in shape. He was dressed in a raincoat of good material and wore a woolen scarf to protect him from the cold. As we approached him he immediately understood the purpose of our interview and answered our questions frankly and without the slightest fear or suspicion.

Rudolf was an alert and intelligent boy. His group of the Hitler youth was put into the anti-aircraft defense around Berlin in 1944, and he served as a so-called luftwaffe-helper. Three months before the end of the war, he was transferred to the Reich labor service where he received military training.

When Rudolf's company was sent up to Hamburg to fight against the approaching Americans he, like most of his comrades, simply walked out of the job and disappeared in the rubble streets of the harbor. He took the last train back to Berlin and arrived just in time to see the Russians enter the town. He said he personally never had any trouble with them.

Rudolf had very definite politi-

UNIFICATION OF ARMED FORCES PUSHED AHEAD

New Setup Recommended By Joint Chiefs Of Staff Is Announced

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Unification of the armed forces was pushed ahead today by orders from President Truman merging all land, sea and air forces in area commands under one general or admiral.

The war and navy departments said in a joint announcement that "each such commander will be responsible for the united planning for defense and in case of emergency the conduct of operations."

The new set-up, recommended by the joint chiefs of staff, trims Gen. MacArthur's command from control over all Army forces in the Pacific to authority only over those in Japan, Korea, the Philippines, the Marianas, Bonins and Ryukyus.

His territorial sphere—the Far East command—eventually will lose the Marianas which will revert to the Pacific command placed in charge of Admiral John H. Towers. Other commanders are:

European, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney; Atlantic fleet, Admiral Marc A. Mitscher; Alaskan, Maj. Gen. H. A. Craig of Army Air Forces; strategic air command in the United States, Gen. George C. Kenney.

The commander has not been named yet for the northeast command established under the arrangement. Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenden for the present will have charge of the Caribbean command.

The war department's deputy commander of operations told a news conference that the reorganization "is the closest approximation without unification to getting what we'd like to have with it."

In making this statement, Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold asserted, however, that "it doesn't eliminate the need for over-all unification providing for a single secretary of the armed forces."

He added: "The purpose of the arrangement is to insure unified operational command. We have been criticized for dual command at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked. This obviates any similar situation."

The officer said that for example in event of an emergency MacArthur could instantly use any force without consultation with the Navy. Military leaders have stressed that the atomic age makes such a cut in red tape imperative.

ZONING PLAN TO BE STUDIED BY FARMER GROUPS

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17—The county-wide zoning proposal to be submitted to the legislature next month will be first studied by farmer organizations and state officials, backers of the proposal said today.

The plan for county-wide zoning, backed by the Franklin and Hamilton county planning commissions to protect suburban real estate values, will be distributed to Farm Bureau groups for discussion.

Three thousand copies of the proposal were given to the Farm Bureau after Ed Bath, bureau lobbyist, said the traditionally cautious farmer—who heretofore has operated all zoning attempts in the legislature—would have to "be informed in a meeting of minds" before the proposal would gain rural support.

As drafted, the zoning proposal would affect only the larger counties, and those on a permissive basis.

GERMAN YOUTH TELLS OF LIFE IN REICH RUINS

Boy Of 18 Believes There Always Will Be Wars, Says Leader Needed

What does the average German "man in the street" think about the future? I asked a reporter around the streets of Berlin to find out. He first interviewed a youth of 18—a former member of a Hitler youth organization whose story is told here today.

By GEORGE W. HERALD
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Dec. 17—In front of the ruins of the sportsplatz where Hitler used to hold his mass meetings Rudolf Birkenkamp, an 18-year-old watchmaker's apprentice, talked about his life in the destroyed Reich capital.

Rudolf, a former member of the Hitler youth, who was taken out of school at 16 to become a soldier, now lives with his father and two sisters in a two-room-apartment in the Tiergarten-district of the British sector. He has an uncle, Dr. Julius Birkenkamp who is a Lutheran minister residing in Worland, Wyoming.

Six-foot-three tall, blond and blue-eyed Rudolf earns 50 marks a month in his apprentice job. He does not have to contribute anything to the household. His father is a house-painter who earns enough to provide for the whole family. His mother died last April at 43 from a heart disease caused by the excitement of the war years.

The Birkenkamps now live strictly on their rations as they don't have the means to buy food on the black market.

For breakfast Rudolf eats two slices of dry bread and drinks a cup of ersatz-coffee. On the first, tenth and twentieth of the month he receives some margarine which lasts for two or three days and makes the breakfast a little more appetizing. He takes the remainder of his daily 500 grams bread ration to the workshop and eats it for lunch.

Rudolf gets his only warm meal in the evening. Most of the time it consists of potatoes, sprouts and some other fresh vegetables. On Sundays, he and his father pool their 65 grams meat rations with the 15 grams a day his two sisters get and sit down to a "real hearty family dinner." None of them has seen any fruits all through the year.

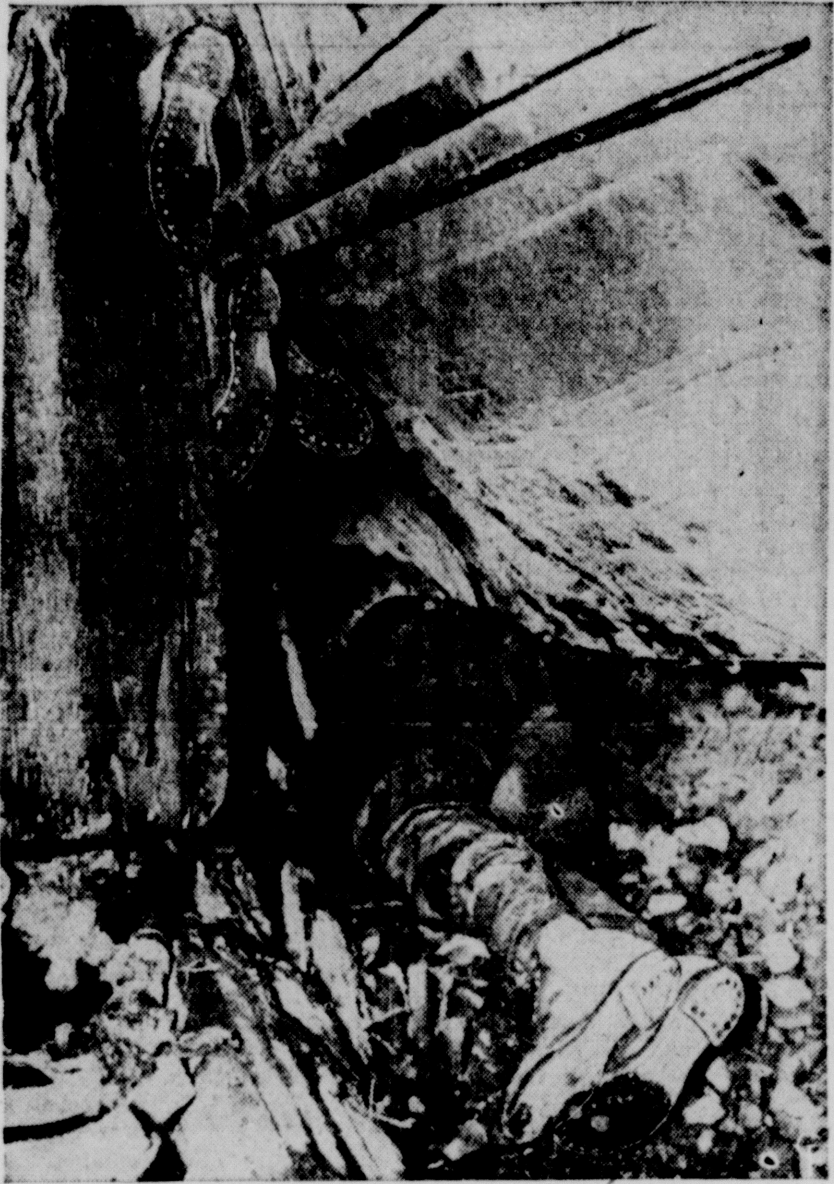

On this diet, Rudolf looked surprisingly healthy and well in shape. He was dressed in a raincoat of good material and wore a woolen scarf to protect him from the cold. As we approached him he immediately understood the purpose of our interview and answered our questions frankly and without the slightest fear or suspicion.

Rudolf was an alert and intelligent boy. His group of the Hitler youth was put into the anti-aircraft defense around Berlin in 1944, and he served as a so-called luftwaffe-helper. Three months before the end of the war, he was transferred to the Reich labor service where he received military training.

When Rudolf's company was sent up to Hamburg to fight against the approaching Americans he, like most of his comrades, simply walked out of the job and disappeared in the rubble streets of the harbor. He took the last train back to Berlin and arrived just in time to see the Russians enter the town. He said he personally never had any trouble with them.

Rudolf had very definite political

OBSOLETE LAWS TO BE STUDIED BY LEGISLATORS

457 State Measures Up For Revision When Ohio Assembly Convenes

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17 — A bundle of 457 state laws as obsolete as buggy whips and mustache cups will be placed before the next Ohio general assembly for revision or repeal.

The bureau of code revision listed that many sections of state legislation as obsolete, antiquated or superfluous.

Most publicized of the old and outdated laws was that dug up last fall by the W.C.T.U. which prohibited sale of liquor within two miles of an agricultural fair.

That statute originally was aimed at itinerant liquor peddlers who once dotted fairgrounds. In modern dress, it raised hob with legitimate taverns and cafes and threw the courts of more than one community into an uproar.

Less discussed but even more obsolete are such laws as the following:

Several scores providing regulations for canal boat traffic;

One requiring a license for "whoever lives in a boat not propelled by steam."

Another providing a fine of not more than $25 for "playing a public game" within one mile of a speaker's stand during a decoration day observance;

And a section calling for a penitentiary sentence of from one to ten years for anyone who "engages as a principal in a prize fight."

At least one section scheduled for scrapping might elicit strong support today. It makes liable to a fine of $2 to $10 the owner or manager of a theater who permits anyone in the audience to wear "a hat, bonnet, or other covering for the head which may obstruct the view of another."

SOLON WANTS TO 'FREE' PLAYERS

Pennsylvania Democrat Says Baseball Players Need To Be Emancipated

BY TONY ZECCA
INS Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17 — A Pennsylvania legislator called a foul on the state's three major league baseball club managements today and announced he will spearhead a fight in the coming general assembly to emancipate players from "peonage and slave labor."

State Senator H. Jerome Jaspas, Philadelphia Democrat, said he will introduce a bill when the state legislature convenes next month, designed to:

1. Prevent the sale of major league players without their knowledge or consent.

2. Allow players to become free agents automatically when their contracts are up, despite their tenure in the major leagues, thus eliminating the "holdover" clause on contracts.

Jaspas denounced the "holdover" clause of big league contracts and the sales of players without their knowledge as "nothing more than peonage, and against the constitution and the principles underlying our democracy."

He declared: "The players, on expiration of their contracts, are forced to sign new contracts with their owners notwithstanding the fact that their old contracts are terminated."

"And in many instances, those refusing to sign again have been shunted off to the minors or have found themselves out of business."

Sen. Jaspas added: "I intend to introduce bills to prevent slave labor, contract labor and peonage. They are being drawn up right now and if I start

While the legislation, if passed—and Jaspas is confident—would directly affect the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League and the National League Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates, he explained that it would "indirectly affect every other club in both leagues."

Jaspas said that while the other clubs would not be bound under the Pennsylvania law, the law would figure into all deals made involving players from Keystone state teams.

For "ALL" the Family

For Baby

A Must if baby is to be comfortable and happy -- a bath in smooth Soft Water -- leaves tender skin soft and clean. Helps prevent chaffing and irritation. Diapers and shirts are clean, soft and white -- do not scratch.

Big Sister

Keeps her hair soft and glistening, easy to control, stays curled longer. Gives her a more lovely complexion, smooth, soft and velvety. Let her wash her personal things in Soft Water.

Big Brother

Sure he likes the girls, likes to have his hair 'just so.' He doesn't like chapped hands and face either. Give him Soft Water.

For Mother

Here is the real pay-off. No more harsh chemical water softeners, virtually no more scouring powders, no bath tubs, wash basins or sinks to scour. Soft Water makes no soap curds, so there is no 'ring in the bath tub or wash basin' and no scum in the sink. Makes washing clothes a pleasure, washing is so easy and clothes come out so white and soft, do not scorch so easily when ironing. Mother too is entitled to keep that 'School Girl Complexion.' She likes to have nice hands and to take a 'Soft' bath when her day's work is done.

For Dad

Let him shave with Soft Water and take a bath in a tub full of Soft suds and then use a nice Soft towel, washed in Soft Water, and see if he isn't a more 'contented' man. It also makes him feel 'good' because he has given all the family something they will enjoy all the year. It makes him feel 'smart' because it hasn't cost him a cent. The savings in soap, hot water heating, coffee, plumbing bills and clothes will repay many times the price of Soft Water.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17 — A Pennsylvania legislator called a foul on the state's three major league baseball club managements today and announced he will spearhead a fight in the coming general assembly to emancipate players from "peonage and slave labor."

State Senator H. Jerome Jaspian, Philadelphia Democrat, said he will introduce a bill when the state legislature convenes next month, designed to:

1. Prevent the sale of major league players without their knowledge or consent.

2. Allow players to become free agents automatically when their contracts are up, despite their tenure in the major leagues, thus eliminating the "holdover" clause on contracts.

Jaspian denounced the "holdover" clause of big league contracts and the sales of players without their knowledge as "nothing more than peonage, and against the constitution and the principles underlying our democracy."

He declared: "The players, on expiration of their contracts, are forced to sign new contracts with their owners notwithstanding the fact that their old contracts are terminated."

"And in many instances, those refusing to sign again have been shunted off to the minors or have found themselves out of business."

Sen. Jaspian added:

"I intend to introduce bills to prevent slave labor, contract labor and peonage. They are being drawn up right now and if I start

TELL OF REVOLUTION SCHEME

THE CONFESSIONS of two members of the Columbians, Inc., Ralph Childers, right, and Lanier Waller, second from right, has implicated leaders of the organization in a scheme to take over the U. S. government, according to Georgia's Attorney General Eugene Cook, left. it, every other state will do the same thing."

While the legislation, if passed—and Jaspian is confident—it would directly affect the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League and the National League Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates, he explained that it would "indirectly affect every other club in both leagues."

Jaspian said that while the other clubs would not be bound under the Pennsylvania law, the law would figure into all deals made involving players from Keystone state teams.

Soft Water Service

For "ALL" the Family

For Baby

A Must if baby is to be comfortable and happy -- a bath in smooth Soft Water -- leaves tender skin soft and clean. Helps prevent chaffing and irritation. Diapers and shirts are clean, soft and white -- do not scratch.

Big Sister

Keeps her hair soft and glistening, easy to control, stays curled longer. Gives her a more lovely complexion, smooth, soft and velvety. Let her wash her personal things in Soft Water.

Big Brother

Sure he likes the girls, likes to have his hair 'just so.' He doesn't like chapped hands and face either. Give him Soft Water.

For Mother

Here is the real pay-off. No more harsh chemical water softeners, virtually no more scouring powders, no bath tubs, wash basins or sinks to scour. Soft Water makes no soap curds, so there is no 'ring in the bath tub or wash basin' and no scum in the sink. Makes washing clothes a pleasure, washing is so easy and clothes come out so white and soft, do not scorch so easily when ironing. Mother too is entitled to keep that 'School Girl Complexion.' She likes to have nice hands and to take a 'Soft' bath when her day's work is done.

For Dad

Let him shave with Soft Water and take a bath in a tub full of Soft suds and then use a nice Soft towel, washed in Soft Water, and see if he isn't a more 'contented' man. It also makes him feel 'good' because he has given all the family something they will enjoy all the year. It makes him feel 'smart' because it hasn't cost him a cent. The savings in soap, hot water heating, coffee, plumbing bills and clothes will repay many times the price of Soft Water.

Say Merry Christmas
With
Soft Water Service

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

And as far as the public is concerned, CIO said its wage increase after a crippling 120 day strike last year at this time would not result in increased prices — but the price of automobiles has been increased three times since then. Actually CIO is trying to get away with the same old hoax on the public about that, whereas the public knows better.

Now we get up to the college level of economics which may be required for understanding — although the kids are right smart these days. The radio did not mention the pertinent figures which were announced just at that very same time. Nor did any front page headlines herald the actual profits of the two companies involved, issued then. You might find these back on the financial page, or not at all, and the public certainly did not get them by ear on the radio.

These figures show the other side of the Nathan story, restricted to industries pertinent to the CIO wage campaign, an accounting presented by U. S. Steel and General Motors to stockholders. As I have no room left today, I will present them tomorrow in full substantiation of my theory of the matter which is this:

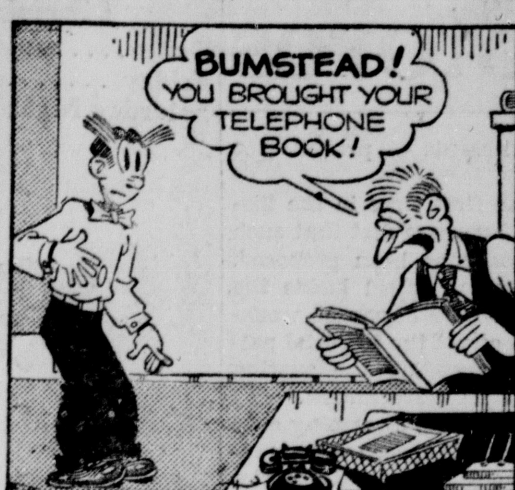

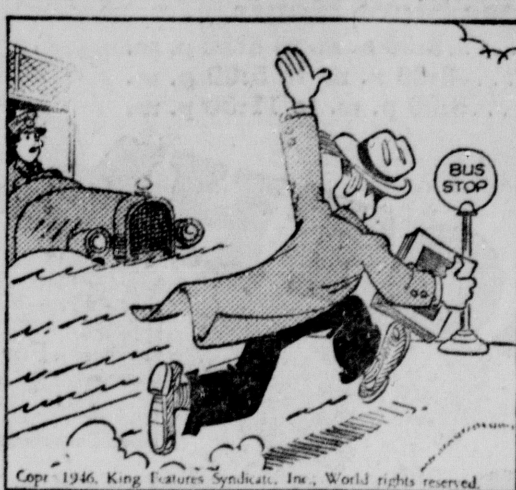

The CIO has taken on a very dangerous battle on exceedingly weak economic grounds. It has chosen the wrong course and is apt to suffer the fate of John Lewis in one way or another. The danger is it proposes to force the country higher into inflation (a game in which the working man must already realize he never catches up). Murray should have avoided this and the CIO should have attempted a campaign against inflation and for a stable economy which is what the wage earner urgently needs, if he is not to plunge the whole economy works down the sewer while groping ambitiously for results which cannot be realized.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

VOX POP
During and since the war, casualties lying in beds in wards of Army, Navy and Veterans' hospitals, scribbling on little pads of paper, pecking away at Red Cross typewriters, or just thinking of ideas, displayed talent in creative writing. Out of this need for expression grew the Veterans' Writers' Workshop for service men in hospitals. Parks Johnson and Warren Hull will take Vox Pop to the St. Albans, L.I., Naval Hospital meeting of the Veterans' Writers' Workshop, to interview Louis Bromfield and John Mason Brown, two of the many interested professional writers, and patients and ex-patients members of the project, Tuesday, at 9 PM, EST, over CBS. The Workshop was organized by Henrietta Bruce Sharon in April 1945, not primarily to make money, but for its therapeutic and rehabilitation value.

DATE WITH JUDY
It's "Father Foster Versus One-Round Hannagan" when Judy's dad has a pugilistic encounter with a local boxing luminary, during "A Date With Judy", Tuesday, at 8:30 p. m. active will be W. W. Bayfield, executive secretary of the American Coal Sales Association, and John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association.

THE FALCON
A man sent to prison on a "frame" is paroled to find that his so-called faithful wife has hooked up with the man behind his conviction in a quite profitable racket, to be delineated on the dramatization of "Death Cries Bloody Murder," to be heard on "Adventures Of The Falcon," Tuesday, (8:30-9 p. m., EST) over Mutual. When said wife turns up a corpse, Mike (The Falcon) Waring finds himself one of the principle suspects, with a lawyer running close second.

SAFETY NOTES
LAFAYETTE, Ind., — During the early winter months 100 pedestrians are killed in the three hours immediately after sunset for every 24 killed in the three hours just before, according to information received at Purdue University from the National Safety Council.

ing "A Date With Judy", Tuesday, at 8:30 p. m.

CONSTANT NYMPH
Joan Fontaine will recreate for radio one of her foremost movie roles when she stars on "Hollywood Players" in "The Constant Nymph," Tuesday, at 9:30 p. m. It's the story of Tessa Sanger, a frail Swiss girl who falls in love with a Belgian musician. He, however, marries Tessa's English cousin. When Tessa is sent to school in England, she runs away to the musician's home, and inspires him to write a great composition.

AMERICAN FORUM
The fourth in the series of "opinionaire" broadcasts, in which the "American Forum Of The Air" will sample listeners' opinions in key cities, will consist of a debate on the topic, "Should We Nationalize the Coal Mines," to be heard over Mutual, Tuesday, (9:30-10:15 p. m., EST). Maintaining the affirmative will be Norman Thomas, titular head of the Socialist party, and McAllister Coleman, noted author and lecturer on the subject of coal. Speakers for the neg-

ARMY VETERAN

HAILED AS HERO IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Dec. 17—Alex F. Schultz, 28, an Army veteran of Cleveland who was decorated for bravery, was praised today for another act of heroism—this time as a civilian.

Because of Schultz' efforts, John Ulinski, 28, was alive today, although in poor condition, at St. Luke's hospital.

Ulinski was sprayed with burning oil while he was attempting to light an oil-fired furnace at the Aluminum Company of America plant in suburban Newburg heights. He became panicky and ran about the furnace room.

Schultz tackled him and smothered the flaming clothing with a fire blanket.

Ulinski suffered second and third degree burns over 60 per cent of his body while Schultz was burned about the face and hands.

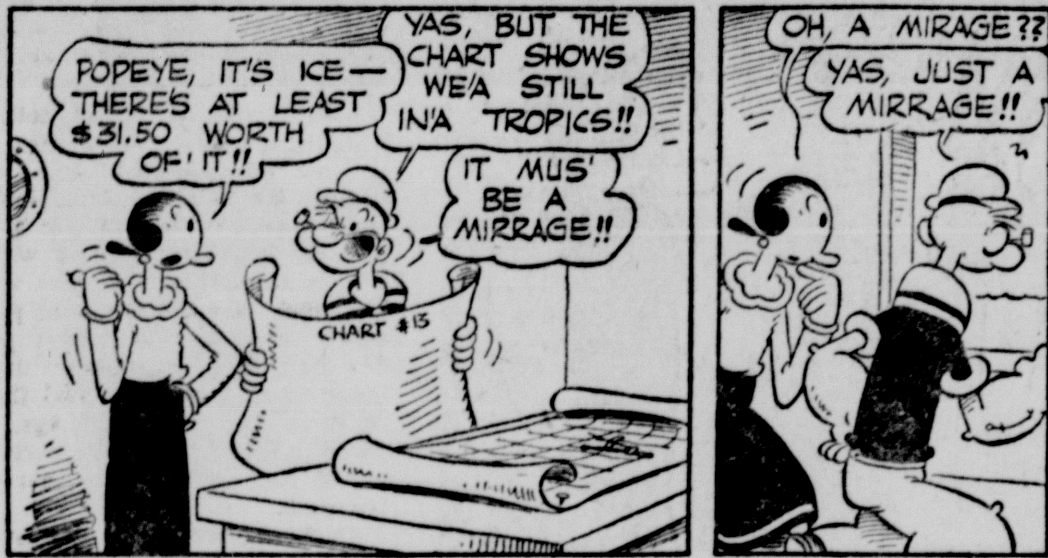

The Army veteran wears the bronze star with oak leaf cluster for heroism in Germany during the war.

MAIL HEADING TOWARD RECORD AT POSTOFFICE

Stores To Be Open Evenings Starting Thursday; School Holidays Announced

Race to buy Christmas gifts was on the home stretch Tuesday and Circleville stores reported that business was "heavy".

With the festive holiday close enough to be hit by a hurled holly wreath the stores were preparing for the annual avalanche of last-minute Yuletide shoppers.

Workers in the postoffice, along with mail carriers, said they look for a record-breaking volume of mail during the remaining period before the holiday.

Only six shopping days remain until Christmas.

For the convenience of Yuletide shoppers most Circleville stores will remain open until 9 p. m. on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Monday, and they will close at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday, Christmas Eve.

Amid all the hustle and bustle of the season hundreds of small boys and girls were eagerly awaiting the visit of Santa Claus. Hundreds of other boys and girls were looking forward to the annual holiday school vacation period.

City and county schools will close for the Christmas-New Years holiday.

Business and industry will virtually come to a halt in Circleville on Christmas day. Most factories and shops and stores will remain closed all day, along with city and county offices, and banks and financial institutions.

Pickaway county courthouse offices will close at noon Tuesday, Dec. 24 to better enable employees to prepare for the holiday.

Postmaster A. Hulase Hays said there will be no change in postoffice service excepting that the stamp and general delivery and parcel post windows will remain open all day Saturday—from 7:30 a. m. to 6 p. m.—instead of closing at 12 noon as is customary. The money order window will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The postmaster urged the immediate mailing of all parcel post gift packages.

Classes in Circleville's five elementary schools and in the high school will be dismissed on Tuesday, Dec. 24, and the students will return to classes Monday, Jan. 6.

The dismissal of classes in the 17 rural schools in Pickaway county will vary from Friday, Dec. 20 to Tuesday, Dec. 24. Some of the schools will reopen Monday Dec. 30 while others will reconvene classes on Thursday, Jan. 2. George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said that the matter of closing and reopening has been left up to the decision of the township and local school boards and faculties.

MOTION TO END JAP PARLIAMENT IS VOTED DOWN

Premier Yoshida Scores In First Effort Ever Made To Dissolve Session

TOKYO, Dec. 17.—Noisy legislators turned down a precedent-breaking motion to dissolve the Japanese parliament today by a vote of 236 to 164.

The vote indirectly meant victory for Premier Yoshida and his cabinet, who have been the object of day-long labor demonstrations in Tokyo.

As thousands of labor demonstrators milled outside the diet building shouting "down with Yoshida," the lower house floor resembled a prize-fight ring.

During the debate on the motion to dissolve themselves, lawmakers engaged in numerous scuffles, with at least three diet members exchanging angry punches.

The motion was placed before the house floor by Tetsu Katayama, leader of Japan's social democratic party. His motion had the support of other minor parties, including the communists and cooperative democrats peoples' party.

However, the two big conservative parties—the progressives and

Yoshida's liberals — proved too powerful.

It was the first time in the history of the Japanese diet that such a motion had ever been proposed.

While tempers raged inside the diet, some 250,000 Japanese workers churning about the imperial palace plaza demanding the ousting of the Yoshida government.

The huge throng, swarming onto the plaza to hear speeches by leaders of the social democratic party, was kept in line by scores of party organizers wielding bamboo staves.

Some members of the crowd were actually struck with the bamboo weapons but for the most part they remained orderly and squatted munching rice balls too far away from the rostrum to hear the demands of their leaders.

DAYTON TEACHER STRIKE OFF; SCHOOL HEAD OUT

DAYTON, O., Dec. 17.—Threat of a strike of Dayton school teachers was removed temporarily today as the board of education sought a successor to City Supt. Emerson H. Landis.

In a surprise move, Landis submitted his resignation to the board at their regular meeting last night. He had been in the Dayton school system 31 years.

His resignation came as the board voted six to one to negotiate with a teachers group on a new salary schedule to replace the proposed schedule advanced by Landis.

The vote indirectly meant victory for Premier Yoshida and his cabinet, who have been the object of day-long labor demonstrations in Tokyo.

As thousands of labor demonstrators milled outside the diet building shouting "down with Yoshida," the lower house floor resembled a prize-fight ring.

During the debate on the motion to dissolve themselves, lawmakers engaged in numerous scuffles, with at least three diet members exchanging angry punches.

The motion was placed before the house floor by Tetsu Katayama, leader of Japan's social democratic party. His motion had the support of other minor parties, including the communists and cooperative democrats' party.

However, the two big conservative parties—the progressives and

Yoshida's liberals—proved too powerful.

It was the first time in the history of the Japanese diet that such a motion had ever been proposed.

While tempers raged inside the diet, some 250,000 Japanese workers churned about the imperial palace plaza demanding the ousting of the Yoshida government.

The huge throng, swarming onto the plaza to hear speeches by leaders of the social democratic party, was kept in line by scores of party organizers wielding bamboo staves.

Some members of the crowd were actually struck with the bamboo weapons but for the most part they remained orderly and squatted munching rice balls too far away from the rostrum to hear the demands of their leaders.

DAYTON TEACHER STRIKE OFF; SCHOOL HEAD OUT

DAYTON, O., Dec. 17.—Threat of a strike of Dayton school teachers was removed temporarily today as the board of education sought a successor to City Supt. Emerson H. Landis.

In a surprise move, Landis submitted his resignation to the board at their regular meeting last night. He had been in the Dayton school system 31 years.

His resignation came as the board voted six to one to negotiate with a teachers group on a new salary schedule to replace the proposed schedule advanced by Landis.

CORDAY FRENZY

The most exciting perfume of all, in the opinion of Corday connoisseurs, is sultry, exotic FRENZY. For this distracting perfume has a hint of the primitive in it—a savage, insistent power over the senses. A fusion of heady, aromatic atmospheres produces the pulse-pounding magic of FRENZY! Wear it whenever you choose to be enticing!
